The New Antarctica

214 Days In Ice

By RON POULTON

Fourth in a Series

SOUTH POLE, Antarctica
—On Nov. 2, 1902, Captain Robert Scott left Hut Point, a bleak volcanic promontory jutting into the sea within sight of today's McMurdo Station.

Fifty-nine days later, he had covered 380 miles and got nothing but scurvy for his pains.

In 1912 he reached the Pole only to die on the way back to the coast. And now the restless ice is carrying his frozen body out to sea.

Nowadays, American supply planes roar over Hut Point every hour. By the time the sun goes down in March, 250,000 square miles of this ice-blocked continent will have been charted from the air.

Year to Hours

The assault on Antarctica, accelerated every year since 1957, is accomplishing between breakfast and dinner what it took the early explorers a year to do.

In one 24-hour span I covered 3,140 miles in a ski-equipped Hercules cargo plane to the South Pole and Byrd stations where men have learned to survive by burrowing into the snow.

The Pole bases 11 men. We saw only three before snow spumed over the huts and the

Navy Deserter Jailed for Year

HALIFAX (CP) — Oliver J. Grenon, 35-year-old former Victoria naval lieutenant, was sentenced Wednesday to one year in prison on a charge of deserting his ship.

Grenon, native of Radville, Sask., and father of four, pleaded not guilty at his court martial which opened Wednesday morning and ended in the afternoon. Subject of a six-month search before he was arrested in Germany last month, Grenon was charged with deserting the destroyer escort Kestonay at Portsmouth, England, last April.

NOT ON STAND
Maximum penalty was five years imprisonment.

Grenon, defended by RCAF Sqdn. Ldr. Clive Riggan, a service legal officer, did not take the stand. He was not asked why he failed to return to the ship or where he had been during his absence.

The decision of the five-man court will be reviewed by the district officer commanding and Grenon can appeal to the governor-in-council or the court martial appeal board.

Cdr. Harry Shorten, Kestonay's commander when she visited Portsmouth, testified he had last seen Grenon on board the ship April 6 in Portsmouth. He said Grenon had been given six days off—four days annual leave and the weekend.

Grenon's leave expired at 7 a.m. April 12 but he failed to return and the ship sailed without him.

The prosecutor, Lt.-Cmdr. Marvin Bial, said unless the accused was prevented from returning to the ship by circumstances beyond his control, "it is reasonable to infer he intended . . . to desert."

PENSION LOST

Addressing the court martial before it retired to deliberate sentence, Sqdn. Ldr. Riggan said Grenon had 17 years' service in the navy. He said in the normal course of events Grenon would have retired on pension with a capital value of $80,000-$90,000, all of which was lost when he was released from the navy.

Sheriff, Son Save Pal from San Juan

'Touch-Go' in Raging River

By ALAN MERRIMAN

Seattle King County Sheriff Timothy McCullough and his 24-year-old son, Timothy, Jr., battled the raging white water of the San Juan River yesterday to rescue their steelhead fishing partner, Seattle restaurateur Tom Werner.

All three came close to drowning when their pram boat hit willows in the river near Port Renfrew at the second riffle below the 12-mile black suspension bridge.

The pram tipped, took in water, and sank leaving the three steelheaders floundering over their heads in icy water. All were wearing full gear, including hip waders.

The young McCullough grabbed some overhanging willows and hauled himself to shallow water.

Sheriff McCullough stayed with Werner, swam with the current and touched bottom.

But Werner, who suffers from severe arthritis, slipped from McCullough's grip and was swept downstream and washed against and partly under a log where he was held by the raging current at the side of the river.

The pram came bobbing downstream, crashed against Werner and pinned him to the log.

The two McCulloughs rushed to his aid and after several anxious minutes were able to free him from the force of the strong current.

The pram washed away, steelhead bobbers and lures floated down the river, $270 worth of tackle, including a $30 rod Werner was trying out for the first time, was lost in the river.

They were left stranded along the bank of the San Juan River, a mile or so from the nearest logging road and had to crash their way through bush and forest to reach the road, four times they had to wade across the swollen river.

"It was touch and go," recalled Werner as he rested at Frank Elliott's home at Port Renfrew last night.

He had hooked into, but had lost two steelhead, before the mishap.

Today they will make a search for their boat and fishing tackle.

Political Pincers

B.C. Premier Facing Biggest Test

By TERRY HAMMOND

Premier Bennett today stands between the threatening arms of a political pincers movement which represents the greatest threat to his administration since Social Credit shot to power in 1952.

On his left flank the NDP army of socialism grids for battle, its numbers swelling daily from the ranks of a B.C. labor movement in sister turmoil.

To the right the captains of B.C. Conservatism muster their scattered followers under the banner of new leadership.

The bitter foes of Social Credit are closing in with an unprecedented intensity calculated to test the premier's canny political abilities to the breaking point and beyond.

Closest to Socialism

Never in history has British Columbia appeared so close to moving into the socialist camp as it does now.

There is a new spring in the step of NDP Leader Robert Strachan as he strides the legislative corridors. Gone is the manner of a leader who suspects he may be tilting at windmills.

FEWER MINES

Mr. Strachan looks and acts today like a man destined to be the next premier or to come so close the whole province will tremble with the palpitations of the free enterprise community.

No longer does he swing and fire on every bird to flush from the government bush. He fires less often. He misses less often, too.

If he had any secret misgivings over his statement that the NDP will form the next B.C. government they were dispelled with the entry of David Fulton onto the provincial Tory scene.

NOT NEEDED?

Before Mr. Fulton's move Mr. Strachan's problem was to get more NDP votes at the next election. He was satisfied, largely on the basis of the party's B.C. showing in last June's federal election, that they were coming his way.

Today he may not need them.

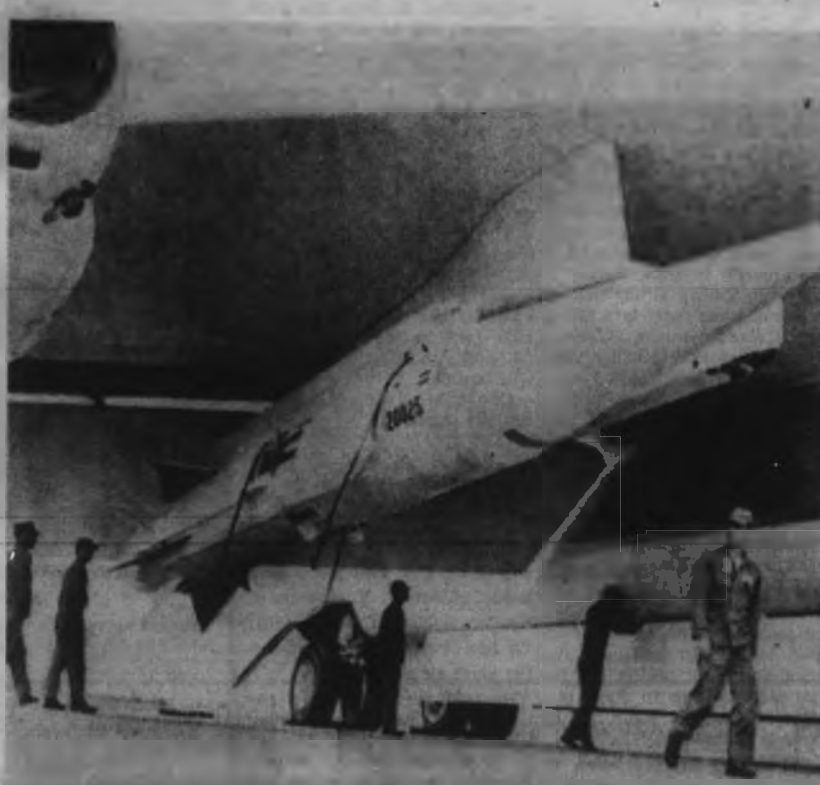

By sapping the strength of Social Credit through an appeal for Tory defectors to return to the fold, Mr. Fulton may hand the balance of power to the NDP on a silver platter.

HOW PROLIFIC?

Onto the platter the NDP will be expected to add the fruits of labor's recent marriage to socialism.

Just how prolific this union will be has been a matter of much conjecture, and not until recent weeks has there been

Controversial Skybolt missile tucked under bomber's wing.

Skybolt Left in Air

WASHINGTON (AP) — Final decision on the Skybolt project, which has strained the American-British alliance, won't be made until after President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan meet next week.

Peacemaker

Visits to New Delhi and Peking to urge negotiations of Sino-Indian warfare are planned by Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi of India. She said India cannot guarantee the cease-fire will continue.

Talks between U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara and British Foreign Minister Thorneycroft have bogged down.

DECISION WAITS

President Kennedy said Wednesday no final decision would be made on the possible U.S. scrapping of the Skybolt program until the current conferences with the British and the project cost reappraisals are completed.

Kennedy said the U.S. government recognizes that Britain has an important stake in the Skybolt. However, he said, it must be decided whether the missile is worth the estimated cost—$2,500,000,000 on top of the $500,000,000 already spent.

COMPROMISE

It is believed Kennedy and Macmillan now will try to reach a compromise agreement at their Bahamas meeting Dec. 19 and 20.

The defence chiefs of the two nations had lengthy talks in London Tuesday. McNamara left for Paris Wednesday to attend the NATO ministerial meeting.

Macmillan first concluded the Skybolt agreement with President Eisenhower nearly three years ago. The Americans undertook to develop the missile and Britain undertook to buy it.

Britain needs the Skybolt to prolong the life of its manned-bomber force. Tucked under the wings of a bomber, the rocket is designed to be fired while still 1,100 miles from target.

Without it, Britain will have no other means of delivering nuclear weapons in the mid-1960s when anti-aircraft defenses would make it virtually impossible for planes to drop their bombs over the target area.

British defence experts say Skybolt's initial flight failures as mere teething troubles which can be overcome.

'Hot Phone' Proposed

Nikita Hands China Rebuke, Warning

From AP, UPI

MOSCOW — Premier Khrushchev sharply rebuked Communist China Wednesday for urging war with the U.S. over Cuba and warned Peking the U.S. is a "paper tiger" with nuclear teeth.

In a two-hour, 40-minute address to the Supreme Soviet parliament broadcast to the nation, he warned the Cuban crisis was not over yet and suggested Russia expected the U.S. to live up to a no-invasion pledge on Cuba.

"The Soviet government is convinced it is not in the interest of peace to tarry with the completion of the Caribbean crisis, and we hope the government of the United States understands this too," he said.

Khrushchev listed settlement of the German issue as the No. 2 problem. He said Russia is determined to conclude a German peace treaty.

Meanwhile, in Washington, U.S. sources estimated between 2,000 and 3,000 American troops have left Cuba in the last few weeks and 9,000 to 15,000 are still there.

Rathie Mayor In Vancouver

Sunday Movies Approved

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canada's third largest city seems sure to have Sunday movies, plays, concerts and operas after 1:30 p.m. and in the evenings.

Voters yesterday approved a plebiscite for Sunday entertainment and also elected as their new mayor William Rathie, 48, a hard-headed businessman and former alderman.

With about one-third of the polls reported, the vote for Sunday entertainment was 8,412 in favor and 3,386 against, a majority of more than two to one.

A bylaw to expand the aquarium in Stanley Park seemed to be headed for victory in early balloting but voters were turning down by-laws to spend more than $5,000,000 to turn parts of two golf courses into parkland.

The mayor-elect promised "substantial streamlining" in city hall and, immediately after his inauguration, to "step up to the front door of city hall and shake hands with all the civic employees."

Picking up majority blocs of votes in most parts of the city, he surged past Ald. Halford Wilson soon after the start of counting, and with 63 of 97 polls reporting had 32,036 votes to Wilson's 26,680.

Kennedy Firm On Cuba

(From AP and UPI)

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy said Wednesday the United States is taking every step necessary to see that offensive Soviet weapons are not brought back to Cuba.

During a press conference, the president said the U.S. is not retreating from its position that on-the-spot inspection in Cuba would have to be made before any formal "no-invasion" pledge could be made.

HOPES FOR SUCCESS
He said he hoped current negotiations with the Russians on Cuban issues would be successful.

Kennedy was questioned on the position reportedly taken by United Nations ambassador Adlai Stevenson in U.S. National Security Council deliberations on Cuba.

DECISION PRESIDENT'S

Kennedy said he would not attempt to describe in any way the position members of the council took. The decision in any case is the president's, he added, the council is merely advisory.

He said he does not think there is much advantage to press speculation about the position members took during the Cuban crisis. He said a consensus finally was reached, his decision was made, and all members supported it.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Thousands of men tended snudge pots and wind-machines across the central Florida orange belt Wednesday as freezing temperatures presented citrus growers with the greatest threat since 1957.

Cave-In Kills 34

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Thirty-four Negro miners were killed and 20 injured in a huge earth cave-in that swallowed a crushing plant Wednesday at the world's richest gold mine, West Driefontein, 25 miles west of here. The hole filled swiftly with water from a burst main.

Mine officials warned Negro miners who, at risk to themselves, went others who had fallen into the pit.

Summer Fair Christmas Boon

A summer-time "Fun Fair" has become part of a Christmas gesture of help by 12 young ladies who live along Craigdarroch Road.

Three young spokesmen for the "Craigdarroch Athletic Association" bounced into The Daily Colonist office the other evening with $15.

Doris Johnston, 12, of 1358 Craigdarroch, said the group had raised money to help in a summer "Fun Fair" in a backyard, and the rest by collecting and selling pop bottles.

"After a lot of consideration, we decided we didn't want the money sitting around any longer, and decided the 500 Fund was the best place for it," he said.

They said, for some unexplained reason, that they weren't too happy with the "Athletic Association" name, nor did they want to say more than their "Fun Fair" included a "Chamber of Horrors," but the money going to help the 500 Victoria families that will receive a cheque this Christmas from the fund.

Next afternoon at Maynard and Sons Auctioneers, 731-3 Johnson becomes a big part of the 500 fund for one evening Friday.

Huge piles of toys—some new, some slightly worn—in infinite variety, will be auctioned starting at 7:30 p.m. to bring Christmas cheer to the needy families helped by the fund.

Maynard's have donated the premises, their staff and a professional auctioneer.

Most of the toys have been donated outright and many more will probably be brought to the auction rooms before the big night begins.

Money received from all toys given outright goes direct to the 500 Fund. Citizens can also bring toys for sale and keep the proceeds, but Maynard's will donate their auctioneer's commission to the fund.

The auction is a big chance to buy Christmas toys at savings . . . and also help the 500 Victoria families that need help most at the happy season of the year.

Bennett Facing Biggest Test

any new evidence to bolster the belief that the NDP's lacklustre showing federally was not a portent of its fate in B.C.

On the national scene the NDP's performance never to have got much closer than arm's-length. In B.C., perhaps because of the absence of the old hard-core OCF farm element in large numbers, the honeymoon is far from over.

DARK HINTS
A recent spate of mysterious and sometimes violent labor disputes in Vancouver would seem to be an attempt to inspire a mass protest against B.C.'s controversial Bill 42 and 43 at a time when repeal of the two labor measures tops Strachan's list of New Year's resolutions.

Some government spokesmen, among them the premier, have hinted darkly that the disputes and the NDP's stand on the two bills are not altogether coincidental. Some people have read into such hints an implication of conspiracy, but no such charge has been publicly voiced and experienced observers lend it no credence.

SINCE
What they do believe is that the disputes reflect one small labor segment's way of aligning itself with NDP aims. And they believe that Strachan was perfectly sincere in deploring these nefarious activities and the people who inspired them.

But the very act of alignment sheds a new light on labor-NDP unity of purpose if not unity of tactics.

Couple this with the NDP's gain of six additional B.C. federal seats last June and it becomes obvious that the New Party calls for a new appraisal.

AMONG FIRST

Premier Bennett himself was among the first to voice a reappraisal a few weeks ago when, on the strength of Fulton's apparent interest in B.C. Tory leadership, he was asked how he felt about the possibility of a B.C. Conservative resurgence.

He didn't hesitate a second in shooting back the reply that it would bring clear the day of a socialist victory.

With the forces of the right sniping at the polyglot political force which has kept the government in power for 10 years, and the forces of the left maneuvering for the main assault, what avenues of defence are open to B.C.'s wily premier?

BEST DEFENCE
Past performances and recent history bear out the conclusion that he is a devotee of the theory that the best defence is offence. No sooner had Mr. Fulton accepted the offer of the B.C. Tory leadership than he was blamed with great vehemence, and perhaps a small measure of justification, for the current Freedomite problem.

No sooner had the violent labor disputes in Vancouver erupted than the premier recalled Strachan's warning that there would be labor trouble and coupled the warning with the reality.

FIRST SKIRMISH
The first real skirmish comes in the Vancouver-Point Grey byelection Monday. The premier's appreciation of the burning political threat can be judged by the intensity of the campaign. The scored campaign expenditure estimate has been placed at around $60,000—a massive sum for a single seat.

But the seat is an important one. Social Credit took it from the Liberals in 1956. Earlier it had been a Tory stronghold. It is one of three seats in a riding which elects Attorney-General Robert Bonner, and which until the death of Mrs. Buda Brown last summer was represented by three Social members. A Social Credit loss there is going to cut some of the heart out of the party and it will cost the government heavily in prestige.

The next action will be the legislative session which commences Jan. 24. Here the government will be under more or less constant verbal attack for some two months. It can't help but win every cause it brings to the floor but its popularity is at stake—and one of Strachan's political theories is that the longer a government stays in power the more enemies it must make.

The decisive battle will be the provincial election and one of Premier Bennett's greatest weapons in his fight for survival is that he alone will decide (within statutory limits extending to late 1963) when it will be held.

One thing is sure—he has not yet decided.

Living in Ice Tunnels

red-flagged bamboo guide lines that lead men to safety when blizzards hit.

It was 39 degrees below. They huddled a greeting into the wind and then—while huts and flags seemed to float in milk—turned and plodded back to the loneliest place in the world.

As we banked and flew over the Pole a shift in the wind uncovered the dirty yellow dome of a meteorological station and then wrapped it in fuzz again.

As the cabin began to heat, I thumbed a pamphlet to confirm what my eyes had seen: South Geographic Pole; elevation: 9,840 feet; snow depth: 9,000 feet; mean annual temperature: -48.9 degrees.

An hour from the Pole on the 820-mile flight back to McMurdo the skies cleared.

Thirty-one thousand feet below Beardmore Glacier glistened. The pale cream, rippled river of ice—35 miles wide and 80 miles long—ground its way through the black teeth of a mountain range; and earned its title of the Ninth Wonder of the World.

We crossed the Beardmore at 300 miles an hour, eyes glued to the place where Shackleton faced starvation in 1908 and turned back only 300 miles from the Pole.

It was 10 p.m. when we landed at McMurdo and fed on pot roast, mushrooms and peaches before taking off for the 885-mile run to Byrd station, carrying 39 souls and 81 pounds of mail.

It was 30 degrees below at Byrd. A U.S. flag flicked from a mast as a Weasel bucketed us from the plane and into a gigantic hole in the snow.

We climbed out 40 feet below the surface and walked through an eerie underground where 133 men live and work in tunnels roofed by galvanized iron.

Statistics mean little here. Elevation: 4,969 feet; snow depth: 8,000 feet; mean annual temperature: 28 degrees; winter population: 11 scientists, 10 support personnel; studies: aurora and air glow, geomagnetism, glaciology, ionospheric probes, meteorology, seismology.

Byrd started Thanksgiving Day, 1960, with three oil drums and a trail flag. Two hundred and 24 work days later men moved underground. When winter strikes, some will not see the surface again for 214 days.

Somebody wondered about it any of the men ever got tunnel-happy. Lieut. W. F. Fraser, of Henderson, North Carolina, said: "A few of them talk about seeing ghost skua birds."

He said the main tunnel entrance had caved in last winter when the temperature dropped to 79 degrees below. Nobody panicked because Byrd has two escape hatches. They climbed out and dug the entrance free.

Lieut. Fraser looked thoughtful and repeated himself: "Nobody panicked. But, come to think of it, nobody laughed, either."

By a vote of 75 to 17 with 14 abstentions the committee adopted the resolution sponsored by Canada along with the United States, Britain and 17 other countries. Both the U.S. and Britain had warned its defeat might affect the attitude of their governments as major financial contributors to the UN.

REFUSED TO PAY

Those voting against included France and the entire Soviet bloc, which have refused to pay anything toward the $10,000,000 a month Congo operation threatening to bankrupt the UN.

The committee also approved another Canadian-inspired resolution instructing a 21-nation working group to consider a special scale of assessments for peace-keeping operations.

MADE IT PLAIN

The first resolution won by a large enough margin to assure its ratification by the required two-thirds vote in the 110-nation General Assembly, but both France and the Soviet bloc made plain they will continue to ignore their Congo assessments.

Acceptance of the court's opinion was significant in that it could pave the way to eventual loss of voting rights of UN members who fall in arrears in their assessments.

Bombs End Revolution

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The air force revolt movement of Gen. Cayo Alsina collapsed last night after government planes strafed and bombed his Cordoba stronghold.

Rebel units at the air base 380 miles northwest of Buenos Aires surrendered formally at 7 p.m.

Alsina fled to nearby Villa Reynolds, where he said he would surrender.

Tandem Balloon Up

Mars Prelude Works

PALESTINE, Tex. (UPI) — A giant tandem balloon was launched Wednesday for an experimental flight 30,000 feet into the atmosphere in preparation for a delicate technical study in February to determine if there is organic life on Mars.

The 600-foot, unmanned balloon was launched after more than a week of postponements. If the flight is successful, the balloon will be used in February to carry the Stratoscope II electronic telescope above the atmosphere in the Martian study.

Meanwhile, at Holloman Air Base, N.M., the project Stargazer countdown began in preparation for today's launching of an astronomical research balloon that will carry two men 17 miles above the earth for man's first clear glimpse at the stars.

A Precious Right

ONCE A YEAR the people of Victoria have the opportunity to influence their own corporate destiny in a positive fashion, with ballots, and today is that day. The opportunity should not be wasted.

The extra attraction that goes with a mayoralty contest is missing in this off-year civic election, but the importance of voting is in no way diminished: the composition of city council and Victoria's school board representation and the majorities accorded to the winners still will reflect the wishes and the likes and dislikes of the citizenry, as will the result of the poll on the civic centre bylaw. The accuracy of the reflection however is dependent on sufficient votes being cast to make sure that no small group or faction with special interests makes its weight unduly felt.

Therein lies the chief danger of an apathetic attitude, and it is only fair to aldermen and school trustees and non-incumbent candidates that the ballots that guide them should be numerous enough to guide them properly. To vote today is not only to exercise a precious right, but to give their due to those who are serving or willing to serve their fellow-citizens in office.

American Strategy

INCONCEIVABLE as it may seem the United States government seems bent on a policy designed specifically to humble Britain in the eyes of her Atlantic Pact partners now gathering in Paris for the three-day session of the NATO council.

The determination with which the Washington administration is pursuing this objective cannot be denied. Mr. Dean Acheson, special adviser to President Kennedy on NATO affairs, launched the offensive last week by publicly stating that Britain was "played out" as an important power in the world.

Hardly had his insulting words time to be re-echoed around the world than the U.S. secretary of defence, Mr. Robert McNamara, took up the attack by announcing that his government is likely to cancel the Anglo-American Skybolt missile project—the nuclear bomb vehicle upon which Britain depends to retain her status as an independent nuclear power, and around which she has designed her whole defence policy.

The purpose of the United States in adopting its present attitude is clear. Never has the American government wanted any other Western nation to possess a nuclear deterrent which is not under the direct control of the United States. It sees itself as the only Western nation capable of deciding when, where and how such a deterrent force may be used.

Having long ago resolved that the defence of Britain was a matter for Britain alone and not something to be left in the hands of any other country, the British government rejected the American view and developed its own nuclear weapons and built up the now famous V-force of bombers.

Britain was, in fact, well on the way to producing her own sky-to-earth missile designed to be fired by RAF jet bombers at targets 1,000 miles or more away in early 1960, when the United States proposed the joint development of the Skybolt which, it said, could be used by both the British and American air forces.

Fully cognizant of America's vast experience and its production potential, the British government took the United States at its word and stopped work on its own weapon in favor of the U.S. designed Skybolt. Obviously Britain, at that time, did not realize just how determined the United States was to retain its position of being the sole Western nation possessing a nuclear deterrent force.

Now, hopelessly trapped on the eve of the NATO conference, the British government finds itself and its whole defence program at the mercy of the United States, whilst the American delegation sits in the driver's seat able to dictate what terms they wish, secure in the knowledge that Britain is at least three years away from producing her own equivalent to the Skybolt.

Nor need Washington worry too much about the possibility of France emerging as an independent nuclear power capable of striking an enemy. Despite President de Gaulle's brave words, France is still a long way from producing an effective missile to carry her nuclear warheads.

American strategy seems to have paid off well when used against her friends. It is to be hoped it works as well against her enemies.

The Bahamas Talks

SOME London newspapers have suggested that Mr. Diefenbaker has invited himself to the Bahamas talks scheduled later this month between Prime Minister Macmillan and President Kennedy.

The reason advanced is that the Canadian prime minister bores Mr. Macmillan, which could possibly be true but equally pertinent perhaps in opposite directions. It will be a fallacy to assume that even between partners the atmosphere is always such as to make a conference palatable.

Mr. Macmillan might want to avoid some of the matters he fears the Canadian prime minister would bring up.

Mr. Diefenbaker did nothing to offset the allegation that he is gate-crashing the Bahamas talks when questioned in Parliament by opponents always anxious to embarrass him, but his silence could mean little or nothing. There are nuances between high-level statesmen sometimes better left unrevealed.

On the other hand so responsible a London journal as The Observer states that Mr. Macmillan, overburdened with complex domestic worries, has felt too weary to fly to Ottawa and has persuaded Mr. Diefenbaker to join him in Nassau immediately after President Kennedy leaves.

It is customary for a British prime minister conferring with the American president on this side of the Atlantic to include in his itinerary a meeting with his Canadian counterpart, in view of their special Commonwealth relation and the inter-locking interests of all three countries.

Not to have met Mr. Diefenbaker, no matter how the Bahamas meeting has been arranged, would have implied a discount to the Canadian prime minister of which Mr. Macmillan can scarcely be imagined to be guilty.

Thinking Aloud

... of these, and ships, and sailing boats.

By TOM TAYLOR

IT is appropriate that from time to time a lady should get a face-lift, every morning for instance or just before she goes out somewhere and if she is a princess, I suppose, the patrician look is all the more mandatory.

Secretly speaking, I have seen plaited girls who are more princess-like than some princesses, but that is by the way.

And when the princess is a ship a new perspective is involved. Not that the Princess Patricia was ever exactly a plebe: no vessel is. And the princess liners of her coast have always borne themselves as any true lady should, with elegance and grace.

That, I fear, has been their difficulty amid changing patterns of tourist travel: they were too palatial to compete with the plain, unadorned ferry ships that usurped their place in life.

Hence the transfer envisaged for the Patricia, which will have a marine face-lift to renew and enlarge her splendour for an enhanced role as a luxury cruise vessel.

If names mean anything, therefore, the Patricia will be restored to the aristocracy for which she was fashioned. Mind you there may be some plebees aboard to enjoy her plush amenities but they will have money in their pockets. A new aristocracy, as it were.

Patricia, as you know, is the feminine of Patrick, and while Pat, Paddy and Patsy have been and are the vernacular cognomens of substituted for the dignity of Patrick itself, the nobility of the lineage is not to be challenged.

The saint himself was the son of a high Roman official, we are told, and it is to the Romans we owe this recognition of patricianship. A patrician was one of the elders or senators of Rome in its heyday of glory and splendour, who held all the honors of the state and passed on to their descendants the legacy of nobility associated with their status. They were the magnates, the aristocrats. So it comes about that the Princess Patricia, soon to be thrived at the Yarrowards, will be reborn to her high destiny. Patrick is a noble name, literally signifying a patrician, and the development of his regal status embraces his sister.

The CPR ship, also, by a geographical connotation not to be dismissed as coincidental but instead as the play of gods who determine such things, has some sisters close by at Work Point Barracks. Actually they are brothers but having assumed the feminine version of the name they must accept the relationship.

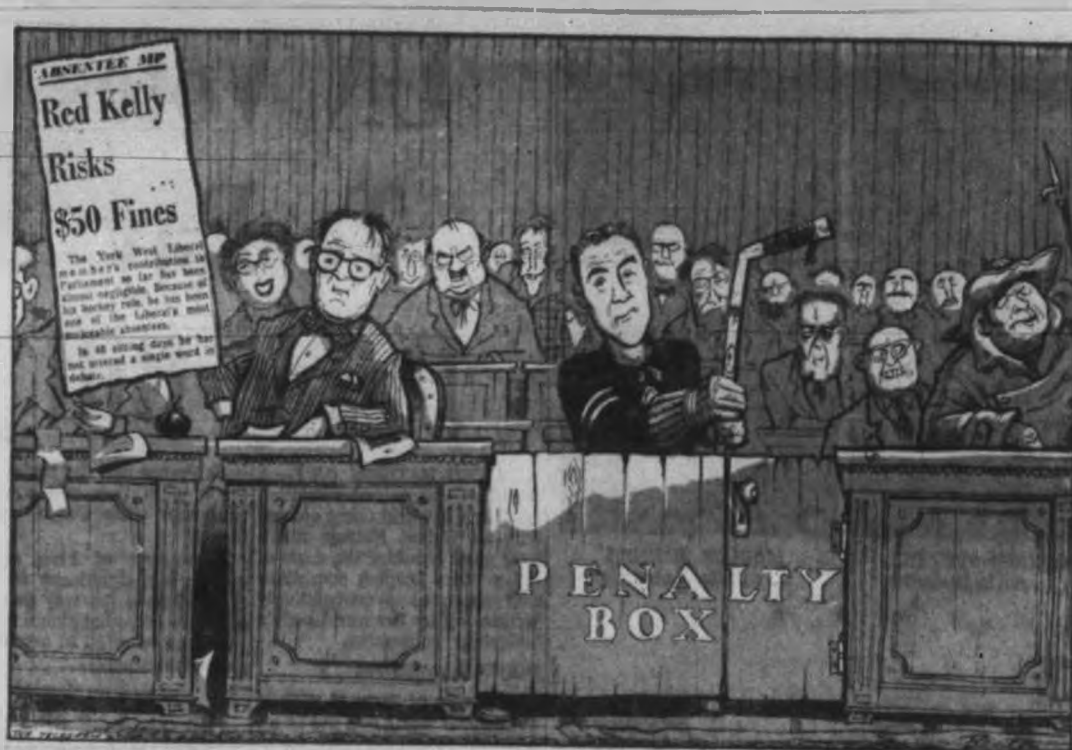

They are not exactly fashioned for plush splendour and luxury cruises, and theirs is a name that frightens the enemy when they go at him with grenade or bayonet, but still they are—the Patricians.

I concede, perhaps some evidence of my own plebeian manners, that I liked best their original colloquial title, the Pats. They were of course properly titled after a princess of regal state and impeccable looks, but in shortened form they soon became known far and wide as "The Pats." It was thus they were harnessed to the renown that the baptism of fire brought them, then and since.

I am careful when referring to them now, of course, to cite them as the Patricians; if that is how they prefer to be known, theirs is the choice, and this after all is their proper name.

Victoria too, I must not forget, is an aristocratic town with a feminine name, not to be confused with lesser breeds without the law, as for instance Vancouver. It is meet therefore that we speak of our patricians, whether on land or sea, in the decorous vein consistent with their noble state.

Anyway, when the Princess Patricia gets her face-lift she'll be a more patrician princess than ever. Of that I am sure.

Unexpected Consequences

By ARTHUR BLAKELY

They revealed that Mr. Kelly had yet to make his maiden speech in Parliament. But that's neither here nor there. Some MPs have gone for quite a few years without testing their oratorical talent.

The Hansard Index contains two entries under his name. One derives from a written question which he asked about RCMP prosecutions and convictions. The other entry was the result of a second written question concerning the possibility of Canadian entry into the Organization of American States.

His voice had yet to be heard.

Of the 12 votes held this session up to the moment the article appeared, Mr. Kelly had voted in six. And for the most part, his participation was limited to those critical no-confidence votes during the earlier stages of the session on which the life of the government (and the future of the Liberal opposition) depended.

At the time the article appeared, Mr. Kelly hadn't been spotted by anyone in the House of Commons chamber since Nov. 6, about a month earlier. That isn't to say that he mightn't have been on Parliament Hill during this period.

MPs have been known to arrive, do some work in their offices and depart with no one having seen them. It happens now and again. And it can happen very easily to someone like Mr. Kelly who is recognizable to most of the people on Parliament Hill only when he appears on an NHL Saturday night hockey telecast wearing a Toronto-Maple Leaf uniform.

Since details of Mr. Kelly's parliamentary record appeared in print, he has been quoted as suggesting that political motives underlay the criticism that had followed. Neither Opposition Leader Lester Pearson nor Maple Leaf manager-coach Punch Imlach had complained to him about his performance to date. Both knew that he had lost time through illness. Anyway, lots of MPs hadn't spoken yet, and anyway, Mr. Kelly had no immediate plans to become a parliamentary leader.

At the same time, he commented on the criticism in philosophical terms.

"I've been expecting this kind of thing ever since I went to Ottawa," he told one reporter. "It was bound to come up."

But at the same time, Mr. Kelly has also taken certain positive steps since he made these comments.

Who was the young MP who was sitting stolidly in his seat on the afternoon of Dec. 6 while the House of Commons discussed the virtues or otherwise of the Atlantic Development Board?

Mr. Leonard (Lester) Pearson (L—York West)—that's who!

A Peace Corps at Home

PRESIDENT Kennedy will probably try to form a domestic "Peace Corps" in the United States next year.

He has named his brother, Attorney-General Robert Kennedy, to head a special cabinet-level committee to study the idea and report back to the White House by Jan. 1.

It is almost a foregone conclusion that the committee will recommend establishment of a domestic Peace Corps because most members of the committee are in favor of it, and more important, so is the president.

The overseas Peace Corps has been such a success, both in terms of accomplishments abroad and in political acceptability in the United States, that the president is enthused about doing the same thing at home.

Under proposals being considered, the domestic Peace Corpsmen would be sent out to underprivileged hospitals and clinics, poverty-stricken Indian reservations, big city slums and run-down farms to provide technical assistance, to improve efficiency and living standards.

It has been estimated that more than 30,000,000 Americans are living in poverty and need help almost as badly as do some of the natives of Africa or Asia.

The idea of a domestic Peace Corps is already running into opposition. Essentially, the opposition comes from conservatives while the support comes from liberals. Ohio Democratic Senator Frank Lausche says the idea is wrong because it is another step toward "big brother" government.

"We are reaching the point where we will have more guides working for the government than we have people to guide," he says.

The Scripps Howard press is unhappy with domestic Peace Corps proposals, saying, "The feeling persists that an already overextended federal government is spreading itself even thinner—that this is a job better left to the states."

The opposition, however, is not loud enough to deter those presidential advisers who favor the domestic Peace Corps.

"Highly important," says Illinois Democratic Senator Paul Douglas. "I think it is ironical that we do things for other countries that we're not doing for ourselves... There's a great deal of opportunity for young people to work in our cities and on the country side."

Sargent Shriver, head of the overseas Peace Corps, is an ardent supporter of extending the idea to the domestic scene.

The Packback

How to Find It

By GREGORY CLARE

AT a friend's house last night the conversation was interrupted by the appearance of the sixteen-year-old son of the family coming into his father's den looking very exhausted and dejected. He was supposed to be studying for a pre-Christmas examination at his high school.

"I can't take this stuff," he said bitterly to his dad.

"What's the use of trying to know everything? How can anybody know everything, the way the world is now?"

His dad is an MA as well as a BA who has proven by his success in business that education does count.

"Look, son," he said, "the purpose of education is not to equip you in knowledge. It is to equip you to know only one thing. And that is to know where and how to find anything you wish to know."

The boy stared in astonishment at his father.

"Say that again, Dad." The father, smiling, repeated it. The boy, looking revived, retreated to his studies.

No Softening

After Cuba

By W. N. EWER

THE passing of the Cuban crisis has naturally aroused thoughts — and not merely wishful thinking — of the possibility that there may now be a fruitful opportunity of easing relations with the Soviet Union over a broader field.

And many voices are being raised to suggest that it is primarily the Western powers who should be responsive to what is interpreted as a more conciliatory attitude on the part of Mr. Khrushchev and the Soviet government. Thus the recent inaugural speech by the secretary-general of the United Nations has been interpreted as a suggestion to the West that they should meet the Russians more than half way.

This seems to go beyond what U Thant actually meant. His main concern was to point out the importance of the change of climate that has been taking place within the Soviet Union itself. The change has also been recognized by Western ministers — in British ministerial speeches for instance.

But the fact is that so far there are no indications that this new internal trend has been reflected in the Soviet Union's foreign policy. There is no real reason yet to believe that Mr. Khrushchev is in a more conciliatory mood in regard to world affairs.

More cautious he may well be, in the light of the Cuban experience, and of his current difficulties with his Chinese ally. But that is a different matter.

And I fear that real examination of the facts gives me no feeling of assurance that some new Western initiative would meet with a new kind of response.

First, one cannot entirely disregard the fact that the chief issues of the moment between the West and the Soviet Union have been, in each case, made acute by Soviet actions.

There was no Cuban crisis until the Soviet Union created one by stationing missiles and long-range bombers in Cuba. There had been no Berlin crisis for nine years until Mr. Khrushchev created one by his sudden and peremptory demand for the Western evacuation of West Berlin. There was no deadlock over nuclear tests until, with equal suddenness, the Soviet reversed its whole attitude by flat refusal to consider any agreement which would involve any form of international verification on Soviet territory.

Nor, when there is talk of give and take, can one overlook the fact that over both Berlin and Cuba, it is the Soviet Union which has so far dug its heels in.

For instance in the negotiations for a nuclear test ban it is the West which has offered all the concessions. The Western powers have made suggestions which should remove any possible ground for Russian fears of espionage. The neutrals in the Geneva conference have made compromise suggestions. But to no avail. Mr. Khrushchev simply repeats, again and again, that the Soviet Union will accept nothing but a total and permanent banning of all tests without any kind of on-site verification on Soviet territory.

These are the unpleasant facts. But they are facts which can be neither overlooked nor ignored.

And I am afraid that they mean that there is no reason whatever to deduce from the Cuban withdrawal that Mr. Khrushchev is, in the whole broad field, in a new and conciliatory mood, to which the Western powers should respond quickly with new offers of new concessions.

There are, of course, indeed, who argue that Mr. Khrushchev, having been obliged to withdraw from Cuba, will, in order to meet or forestall criticism at home, have to adopt an even tougher attitude on other issues.

I am not much impressed by this argument. I do not anticipate a hardening of attitude in Moscow: still less any new and dangerous enterprises like that which brought about the Cuban crisis. But, unfortunately, I see no signs of any new flexibility, of any departure from Soviet rigidity.

And I cannot help thinking that admonitions to show a more conciliatory spirit should be addressed to Moscow rather than to the Western capitals.

Venus Mystery Solved Tomorrow

By JOSEPH L. MYLEN
From Washington

Man may find out tomorrow whether the planet Venus is the possible abode of living things or a barren sphere of fering only death to visitors.

At about 3 p.m. tomorrow the U.S. Mariner 2 spacecraft is expected to be approximately 21,200 miles from the brilliant planet, which is the earth's nearest neighbor and almost its twin in size.

The spacecraft's mission, after almost a four-month journey in space, is to penetrate the shroud of clouds around Venus and report whether the planet is capable of harboring life.

A Soviet spacecraft launched Feb. 12, 1961, passed within 22,000 miles of Venus. But its radio had gone silent and the Soviet probe was a scientific failure.

The U.S. craft still is on course, travelling at 82,000 miles per hour. If its instruments do not falter at the last minute, it will supply some of the answers about Venus that man has sought for centuries.

Mariner 2 has transmitted more information about interplanetary space beyond the moon than had ever been gleaned before. For the first time, in response to radio commands from earth, a spacecraft has changed pace and course in flight.

It has penetrated far deeper into space than any other craft whose attitude was controlled by stabilizing jets. These jets, activated by delicate sensors, have kept Mariner's solar energy-gathering panels focused on the sun and its directional antenna aimed at the Earth throughout most of the long flight.

When Mariner 2 makes its nearest approach to Venus tomorrow it will be about 35,000-000 miles in straight line distance from the Earth. But it will have travelled about 182,000,000 miles on a spiral path through space.

During the 30-minute period when it is catching up with Scientists deliberately planned Mariner's trajectory so that it would pass rather than hit Venus. By merely flying past, it can get and transmit more information than if it destroyed itself by crashing on the planet.

Throughout most of its long voyage six scientific instruments have been measuring fields, particles, radiations, and dust. At about 6 a.m. tomorrow, nine hours before the closest approach to Venus, two additional instruments will be turned on for the crucial 30-minute fly-by.

These are a microwave radiometer and an infrared radiometer. Between them they will gauge the temperature of the planet's surface and atmosphere and look for signs of oxygen or water vapor in the opaque clouds which envelop Venus. They will watch for any breaks which may exist in these extremely dense clouds.

The spacecraft's instruments also will measure the planet's

South Africa's Coloreds

New Law Terrifies Thousands

Associated Press
(From Capetown)

The South African government's decision to make identity cards compulsory pocket fare starting next February has terrified thousands of people who live now on the racial borderline—the coloreds who pass as whites.

Applying for a card could radically change, even wreck, the lives they have been living. Their white standard salaries and their way of life in the guise of Europeans may be gone.

Freedom At Stake

Many have been sending their children to white schools, living in white areas, holding down jobs as whites, mixing with white friends and enjoying white social amenities.

They face humiliation and even ruin if the legally designated racial classification of colored Eurafrikan appears on the small green, plastic card bearing photograph and personal particulars.

Borderline cases who want to be classified as white have to fill in forms containing searching personal questions. These include:

- Are your friends exclusively white or colored persons, or do they belong to both racial groups?
- Furnish the names and full addresses of three of your most intimate friends not relatives and state how long you have been friends.
- Are you, your wife or children employed as white or colored persons?
- Do you attend cinemas for white or colored persons?

• Since when have you or your wife or children been usually accepted as white persons?

• Do you reside in a white, colored or mixed residential area?

• Do you travel on trains and buses as white or colored persons?

Applicants must signify their agreement that their intimate friends can be approached "for a statement to the effect that they regard me as a white person."

According to a statement issued in the capital, Pretoria, at the end of October there were then about 200,000 whites who had not yet got their identity cards, and about 400,000 coloreds and Asians.

The penalty for not having a card when they become compulsory is a fine up to $140.

LETTERS to the Editor

To be considered for publication in whole or in part letters must be on subjects of general interest, not more than 300 words in length, and if signed with a pen-name, must be accompanied by the writer's name and address.

Let that man stand up who says Victoria is dying and we have no industry! With new and vigorous management a major Victoria activity could be termed as industry. God bless it. What do you say we shall call it? I submit "The Digging Up the Roads Industry."

There seem to be many well-qualified persons in this permanent, year-round industry; my only suggestion is that someone ought to be trained on how to fill the holes in.

If it is not for lack of training but lack of proper equipment that we have such terrible holes in our

ROAD RUNNER.

The Belted Plaid

The claim that the kilt is an English invention is a very good joke and the Scots love a joke on themselves. In ancient times Celtic tribes on the continent of Europe were noted for the excellency of their woollen cloth and the diversity of colors used in its manufacture.

We can therefore confidently assume the kilt has been evolved from the costume of the early Celtic inhabitants of the country. The older form of the Highland dress was known as the Breacan Feile, or belted plaid, similar to that worn by shepherds in the Biblical days, only they wore—as the early Britons wore—animal skins belted in the middle.

This belted plaid was a piece of tartan two yards wide, four or six in length, carefully pleated in the middle. This was folded back and front, strapped by a belt in the middle, knee length with a badge on the shoulder.

Feile-Breag, or Little Kilt, is what is now universally used as Highland garb. Actually, it is the lower part of Breacan Feile. Roman soldiers wore a type of little kilt, also the Greek soldiers of today.

Join Oak Bay

How apathetic can people get? One answer is given by the number of eligible voters that fail to take advantage of this their privilege.

A very dangerous situation exists for property owners in certain areas of this municipality: particularly those who have property in the Mt. Tolmie, Cadboro Bay, Queenswood, Ten Mile Point, and Gordon Head districts. These areas represent the greatest source of residential taxation in Saanich; and

I believe the only member at Council who resides in this area, is the Reeve. So a situation that might well happen, is that much of the revenue received from taxpayers of these prime areas could be spent on schemes wholly beneficial to residents living elsewhere in the municipality.

The time is long over due for property owners in the above areas to try to obtain incorporation with Oak Bay.

Premium Brainstorm

I was surprised to learn that motorists who have to travel more than 10 miles from their homes to their places of work are going to have next year's automobile insurance premiums increased from $24 to $37 per $100,000 of third-party liability cover.

Just what the theory is behind this, other than the fact that the guy that pays the insurance premium has little to say about the price, is beyond my comprehension.

Accidents, when they do occur, can occur within half a mile of a person's trip from home to business and I have heard of several that have occurred as the person driving was coming out of his own driveway.

I would think that a proper and more efficient way of determining insurance premiums of this sort would be the physical and mental ability of the driver, and his past record as regards accidents, rather than on the basis of one man driving 9½ miles from his home to business or the fellow that drives 10½ miles for the same purpose.

It would be interesting to know just how the insurance companies arrived at this latest brainstorm in regard to the premium rates.

Radio measurements from Earth suggest that Venus' surface temperature is about 615 degrees Fahrenheit. It may be, however, that this is a false indication caused by high electron densities in Venus' ionosphere.

In that event, the temperature of the Venusian surface might be around 100 degrees, or 150.

If that turns out to be the case, and if there is water and oxygen, life almost certainly exists on Earth's twin, scientists say.

Banker's Market Fear

Bias Shaping Up?

By HARRY YOUNG
Columnist Business Editor

Neil McKinnon, president of Canada's largest bank, says he has been taking a look at the latest developments in Britain's proposed entry into the European Economic Community, and he isn't sure he likes it.

The head of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce told his shareholders this week in Toronto "the protectionist bias shaping up in the European Common Market" was a matter of concern and it might lead to a contraction of international trade.

Mr. McKinnon said France's bid to exclude foreign agricultural and other imports into the EEC could provoke retaliation in a wider field.

He warned the great world depressions of the past have often had their roots in discriminatory trade barriers by large nations or groups of nations, leading to a shrinkage of world trade.

If the market moves that way he feels it will be serious for all the world and for Canada especially.

Mr. McKinnon says this may be the main problem Britain is facing in its negotiations in Brussels.

subjects which it uses for presentation to the government.

The December ballot—No. 33 in the series—asks these questions:

• Would you be in favor of a federal Medicare plan being introduced?

• Does the Combines Act provide sufficient protection for small businesses?

• Is the six months allowed by the government for the payment of succession duties long enough?

Lowly Fuse Delays Nuclear Sub Trials

BARROW-IN-FURNESS, England (UPI) — Britain's first nuclear submarine, the $56,000,000 Dreadnought, cruised majestically out of harbor here Tuesday on its first sea voyage—and returned a few minutes later. "Someone blew a fuse in the communications system," the captain explained.

British Win Battle

Hostages Freed

LABUAN, North Borneo (AP)—British troops clinched their victory in the battle of Seria Wednesday with the freeing of 45 hostages, including a wounded American, and battered Borneo rebels out of a group of other towns in quick succession.

"The situation is fast improving," a British Army spokesman said.

INSURGENTS ON RUN

Insurgents seemed to be on the run in this fifth day of an uprising they apparently had aimed to weld three Borneo territories—the oil-rich, British-protected sultanate of Brunei and the crown colonies of North Borneo and Sarawak—into a single independent nation opposed to a British-proposed Malaysia federation including Malaysia and Singapore.

AMBUSHES READY

But there were hazards even in flight. Four hundred pro-British Sarawak tribesmen, heading a government plea for help, fanned out near the border of Brunei and Sarawak in a move to ambush any rebels retreating into the jungles.

British sources announced the capture of Kuala Belait, another oil centre seven miles south of Seria; the village of Tulong, on the 45-mile coastal road linking Seria and Brunei Town, the sultanate's capital,

Baker, Mates Open Grid Bowl Games

THE PALMER METHOD

THE UNINTENTIONAL SLICE IS MURDER ON YOUR GAME

When the club approaches contact with the ball from the outside of the intended line of flight, with the club-head open, clockwise spin may be put on the ball, causing it to curve right, so you wind up with a slice.

Let the clubhead remain square at impact. To help achieve this, don't swing away from the target on the backswing, as the golfer in illustration #2 is doing.

Instead, make sure there is no way of lateral hip shift away from your target (see illustration #3).

In the third illustration, the golfer is turning away correctly from the target during the backswing. His left shoulder is turning down and under and will be under his chin at the top of the backswing. This is as it should be.

GEORGE CHUVALO ... wants to fight

Chuvalo in Detroit To Resume Career

TORONTO (CP) — George Chuvalo, almost a forgotten man among heavyweights, shed his manager and left for Detroit yesterday to start on a comeback at the tender age of 35.

"If I wanted to be a painter," said George, "I'd move to a place where there's a better environment for painting. But I want to be a fighter, so I'm moving to a city where there's a better environment for fighting."

Chuvalo, once ranked fifth among world heavyweights and former Canadian champ, intends to manage himself for a while.

Jack (Descon) Allen, veteran handler of boxers in Toronto, has been Chuvalo's manager for the last five years.

Allen announced Tuesday he had severed his connections with Chuvalo, but "the decision was not of my making."

Chuvalo, who fights at 207 pounds, now weighs 212 and hasn't had a fight in more than a year. In 28 professional bouts he has won 22-16 knockouts—lost five and had one draw.

His last fight was Oct. 2, 1961, against Joe Erskine of Wales. Chuvalo lost that one at Toronto on a fifth-round disqualification.

He'd like a shot at former world champ Ingemar Johansson and even better, a bout with Cassius Clay, whom he picks as the only logical deal harder than had been expected, a feature of the play being the excellent fielding of the country players, who picked up well and made some brilliant catches.

At no stage did MCC match the after-lunch scoring rate of the home team, which added 113 in an hour before declaring at 191 for 6 wickets after batting a little more than three hours.

The tourists were left a generous two hours, 35 minutes to win and they reached 196 for 5 in 130 minutes, Ken Barrington settling the issue with a straight drive for six.

New-Method Rugby Coming

By JIM TAYLOR

Canada's touring rugby players came home with more than just happy memories and a carload of souvenirs. They also brought back a new approach to the game that makes it faster and more interesting for spectators.

In 10 weeks, through a breakneck schedule of 16 matches (one win, one draw, 14 losses), banquets and sightseeing tours, the Canadian team was introduced to rugby as it is played internationally. The Canadians came away impressed.

"It's not that the rules are different, it's just they are interpreted differently," says B.C. Rugby Union president Dick Ellis. As front man for the touring club, he saw all the matches and spoke with authority as he outlined the changes in "rugby."

"Basically, the back row forwards become backs. By their definition, and we had England's top referee, a loose ruck is not a loose scrum, and the ball can be handled. This virtually eliminates heeling the ball back, and you have a much faster game that is better to play and much better to watch."

Ellis feels that the 26 players on the tour—including Burgess, Murray McAlpine and Ian Patterson of Victoria—learned a great deal about the international style of play will gradually become part of the game as it is played here, to the game's improvement.

"I was proud of the way our team adapted," Ellis said. "Players over there are playing their third season under the new system. We had to learn it in 10 weeks, and at the end of the tour we were playing their way."

The revamped play was the most significant item on the tour for Ellis. But there was one other that made him envious and at the same time a little annoyed.

"Over there they have parks everywhere—not just rugby pitches, but parks for soccer and other sports. Here we struggle along with one or two. "With all the land we have, they make us look like players."

City Jail Inspection Delayed

Plans for the newly-formed criminal justice committee to inspect the city jail Dec. 18 will likely be moved ahead to early in the new year.

Army Tests Easier to Watch Than to Do

Reporter Don Gain tries first exercise in army combat proficiency test at Work Point. A misstep in the dodge-run-jump would land him in a muddy ditch.—(Robin Clarke)

Leopard crawl is easy when there's no live ammunition whizzing over your head. "Keep your stomach and heels down," reporter Gain was cautioned.

This looked simple when somebody else did it. But, when 40 pounds of rifle, steel helmet and webbing was added to Don Gain's own weight, gravity set in.

Information Awaited

Renewal Plan Decision In January

By IAN STREET

Fate of a proposed multi-million-dollar urban renewal program hinges on the decision which will face city council some time in January.

It was learned at city hall yesterday that all the information required for a formal application for participation by both provincial and federal governments will be completed by the end of this month.

LION'S SHARE

Ottawa and B.C. would contribute the lion's share of the redevelopment project which is planned for 28 acres bounded by Douglas, Hillside, Quadra and Bay.

Existing commercial and school properties are excluded. The city stands to gain additional tax revenues over a long term and assistance in completion of the costly Blanchard Street extension program in return for a relatively small outlay of funds.

TOTAL COST

The preliminary report on the scheme, prepared by the Capital Region Planning Board, was presented to city council just over a year ago.

The report estimated total cost of purchase of all properties involved, clearing of existing structures, re-zoning residents of the area in new accommodation, and re-zoning services at some $1,200,000. The CRPB report estimated three motor hotels to be built by private enterprise as part of the redevelopment project alone would represent about $300,000 in assessments.

Assessments in the entire area at the time of the study totalled only just over $40,000. The senior governments would build low-rental housing, according to the CRPB study, worth about $1,500,000 on which grants in lieu of taxes would be paid. The project also includes a new school to replace North Ward.

Brief Campaign

Light Vote Expected

A record 20,432 voters are eligible to go to the polls today in Victoria's civic elections—but only 6,000 to 7,000 are expected to avail themselves of the privilege.

Polls open at 8 a.m. in Victoria Ballroom on the north-west corner of Government and Cormorant and remain open until 8 p.m.

FOUR COUNCIL SEATS

At stake are four city council seats sought by seven candidates, two school board seats contested three candidates, and a $550,000 money bylaw to speed completion of the Centennial Square civic plaza project which is already under way.

The money bylaw requires a 60 per cent affirmative vote. Property owners, who number 18,831 on the city voters roll, may vote for aldermen, school trustees and the money bylaw.

Others on the roll—1,308 resident-electors and 313 tenant-electors—are only allowed to vote for aldermen and school trustees.

MARK ALL BALLOTS

City hall officials are seeking co-operation of voters in marking all ballots they receive. In past years "many hundreds" of ballots have been left blank and must be specially stamped and mailed.

A special staff of some 50 workers will be on duty today and this evening at the single polling place in Victoria Ballroom, 1600 Government.

Final results in all three votes should be known shortly after 11 p.m.

Some concern is felt at city hall that lack of controversial issues in the brief election campaign may result in an unusually poor turnout even for a non-majority year.

A car pool has been set up to provide transportation to the polls. Those who wish may call either EV 4-8331 or EV 3-4116.

Voters are asked not to loiter around the polling station after they have cast their ballots. But when the polls close at 8 p.m., the public is welcome to stay and watch as the ballots are counted.

Century Mark 'Surprises' City Woman

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

A Victoria great-grandmother of 27 children, who was a Saskatchewan ranch wife from 1898 to some 10 years ago, celebrates her 100th birthday today.

Mrs. Susannah Perrin, who lives with her daughter, Mrs. Irene G. Williams at 3674 Ophir, Saanich, last night looked back on a life that took her from Kent, England, to London, Halifax, South Dakota, Maple Creek, Sask., and Victoria.

"I've been well treated wherever I've gone," she said. "I've enjoyed my life."

But she looked back with nostalgic delight on her youth in Kent, London, the Isle of Wight and North Wales.

SO QUICKLY!

She seemed surprised to have reached the century mark so quickly. "I knew I was getting on."

Mrs. Perrin was born Susannah Chamberlin, the daughter of an English navy officer. Her mother lived to 94 and her maternal grandmother passed 100.

TO HALIFAX

After studying at the Home and Colonial College in London for two years, Miss Chamberlin spent some years as a teacher, rising to an administrative post in a north London girls' school.

At about 30 she came to Halifax where she visited a married sister for six months. Then she continued to South Dakota where her fiancé, an English fruitgrower's son and a sweetheart of long standing, had prepared a place for her. They married and farmed in South Dakota for six years. She bore three of her four children there.

The pioneer couple moved to Maple Creek, Sask., in 1898 and Mr. Perrin ranched. It was mostly there Mrs. Perrin raised and educated her children.

SON ON FARM

Mrs. Perrin left the family farm at Maple Creek for Victoria about 10 years ago. Her husband died about 12 years ago. One son, Roy, still lives at the farm. Another, Len, is in Edmonton. A daughter has died.

Of 18 grandchildren, 14 survive throughout the Canadian and U.S. west. Two of Mrs. Williams's children live in Greater Victoria: Mrs. N. H. Latimer of 3038 Oakdowne and W. G. Williams of the Cordova Bay area.

Mrs. Perrin, who still plays the piano, said: "It is always good to have children." A visiting four-year-old great-granddaughter was playing on the floor. "Are you married?" she asked the reporter. "No?" she asked. "Why not?" she asked. "I know much about it."

Three generations apart, Mrs. Susannah Perrin, 3674 Ophir, who is 100 years old today, and one of her 27 great-grandchildren, Diane Latimer, 4, of 3038 Oakdowne, sit together.—(Bud Kinsman)

Measure Up!

By DON GAIN

It isn't every day you get an invitation to sample an army combat proficiency test. It was a watered-down sampling, but enough to give me the idea.

The test is part of a stepped-up physical training program in progress at 1st Battalion PPCLI at Work Point.

"It is our business to be physically fit," said commanding officer Lt.-Col. G. G. Brown. "We are going to see every officer, non-commissioned officer and man measures up."

All personnel under 25, regardless of duties, are required to take a battle physical efficiency test every six months. Men over 35 will carry out 5BX exercises for their age group.

Lieut. Lawrence Gollner, commander of Reconnaissance Platoon, has set up a combat proficiency test modelled after American ranger tests of the U.S. Army.

This test is taken in full battle dress. Each man carries about 30 pounds of rifle, small pack, webbing and helmet, with clothing and boots extra.

There are five exercises. The dodge-run-jump consists of four barriers with a ditch in the middle. The infantryman skirts two barriers, leaps the ditch, goes around two more barriers and returns the same manner.

The leopard crawl is a stomach-to-ground crawl over a 20-yard course and back. The ladder exercise is done on a horizontal ladder about nine feet up. The man progresses rung by rung; hand over hand, turns while still in the air and returns.

"We also have some psychological obstacles," he said. In the commands crawl, a man runs and jumps over a barrier or down a small cliff into an area he cannot see. This tests his ability to think while in the air, deciding on his way down whether to roll or continue running.

Final exercise is a climb up a landing net.

All these activities should condition PPCLI men for their battle physical efficiency test in full battle order.

To make sure nobody is missed, Col. Brown has organized extensive sports activities and laid on six hours of physical training a week for all ranks.

"The standard of physical fitness of all ranks has increased appreciably since this program was instituted," said Major D. R. Harrison, battalion sports officer.

Goodwill Raid Fails

A thief surprised in the act of robbing a cash register at Goodwill Enterprises, 360 Yates, dropped a cash drawer and fled empty-handed last night.

There was nothing in the cash register, detectives said. He was surprised by members of the Goodwill organization who were returning to the building to hold a meeting.

Winds Break Fog System

A fog system which Tuesday night halted most commercial airline flights in and out of Victoria was not as widespread last night due to winds moving in from the ocean which dissipated the low-lying clouds.

Crackdown Ahead

City Police Chief John Blackstock is planning a general crackdown on drivers over the Christmas period with all the thoroughness of a military operation.

Traffic squads will set up checkpoints throughout Victoria to catch impaired drivers and all police have been instructed to seek out driving violations.

Particular attention will be paid to speeding drivers ignoring stop signs or red lights, he said. Times, dates and locations of checkpoints to catch drunk drivers are top secret, he said.

Drinkers Face Dragnet

known to only a few police officials.

At the same time he announced increased police activity, Chief Blackstock appealed to all drivers to exercise intelligent driving if they have been drinking.

"Any driver who has been drinking should call a cab, or even city police—we'll do our best to get him home," he said.

"There will be no action taken against any driver who asks for police aid in reaching home, but we'll crack down hard if he tries to drive himself."

"A cab home from a party will cost only a dollar or so and it's cheaper in the long run—a conviction for drunken driving can mean a fine of up to $250 or jail, cancellation of the driver's license, and increased insurance rates."

"Let's have a safe Christmas on the road this year."

View Royal Votes Today

View Royal residents will be able to vote today for two city representatives to the Greater Victoria school board.

View Royal is in School District 61 but has no representative on the school board.

Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. at View Royal Elementary School, 218 Helmcken Road.

Odgers Talks To Rotary

Dr. G. J. Odgers of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory will speak at a meeting today of the Victoria Rotary Club at 12:10 p.m. at the Empress. He will comment on a prolonged visit to Russia.

Post Office Blackout Puzzle for Customer

GUESS YOUR WEIGHT?

Friend of ours is curious as to why the parcel scales in the post office are blacked out so the customer can't see what the scales register. Stare scales can be read from both sides. The curiosity came about when the man mailed two parcels—identical in every respect except that one went out a week later. One cost $2.65 on postage—the other $1.15.

OUR GAI, SAI: JIM ARD

who writes the Shopping with Sally feature published in the Colonist social pages Fridays found out about the power of the press the hard way. Recently she found some attractive Christmas cards, so mentioned them in the column. Later, a few days later, she realized she needed some Christmas cards, herself, so she went down to the store. The clerk repeatedly referred her to the Christmas card department. She was being a wise man in a Christmas pageant.

By Ted Shackleford

Reg's singing saw has been a welcome feature of Island shows for years.

CLIP JOINTS: Apart from

lack of funds, no man will have an excuse for looking shaggy over Christmas. In the week preceding Christmas barber shops are allowed to stay open on their normal closing day so city stores will be open all day Wednesday, Dec. 19, and stores in Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt will be open all day Monday, Dec. 24.

OLD HAT: We hear his trip to New York to tape two shows for the Ted Mack amateur hour is old hat to veteran Victoria entertainer Reg Hader, 1677 Christmas—he was a "hanger"—a dangerously weak branch—and the easiest way to correct this is to pull the branch off with a rope. If the tree is hard to climb then the easiest way to get the rope over the top is to tie a heavy object to a long string, toss the object over the branch, tie the rope to the other end of the string and then pull the rope over. This time the heavy object—the hammer—got caught.

Army Boosts Rescue Estimate

OTTAWA (CP) — Maj.-Gen. A. E. Winch, chief of the army's national survival operations, says mobile columns would rescue hundreds of thousands of persons in event of nuclear bombardment of Canada.

He declined in an interview to give a figure in this regard, because there would be so many imponderables and variables in such a disaster. But he said the army now is capable of rescuing between three and four times as many persons as it was three years ago.

Gen. Winch said most of the planned 210 mobile survival columns have been organized—there are some 700 soldiers, militiamen and civilians in each column—and that nearly all the equipment for them has been delivered.

Asked what the army has achieved in the field of national survival for its expenditures of some $120,000,000 for this purpose since September, 1959,

Gen. Winch listed:

1. A "good" warning system across the country.
2. Establishment of some 2,000 fallout monitoring posts and a 47-station nuclear detection and fallout reporting system.
3. A widespread communications system, including building ings and radio equipment. Construction of six regional emergency headquarters has started. They are partly underground.

4. Provision of equipment for re-entry operations into target areas, such as rescue gear and radiation measuring devices.
5. Special militia courses during which 62,000 men trained.

Peace Talks Halt in Press Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Federal mediators halted joint peace talks Wednesday in the strike involving the city's nine major daily newspapers, saying the parties were too far apart for productive sessions.

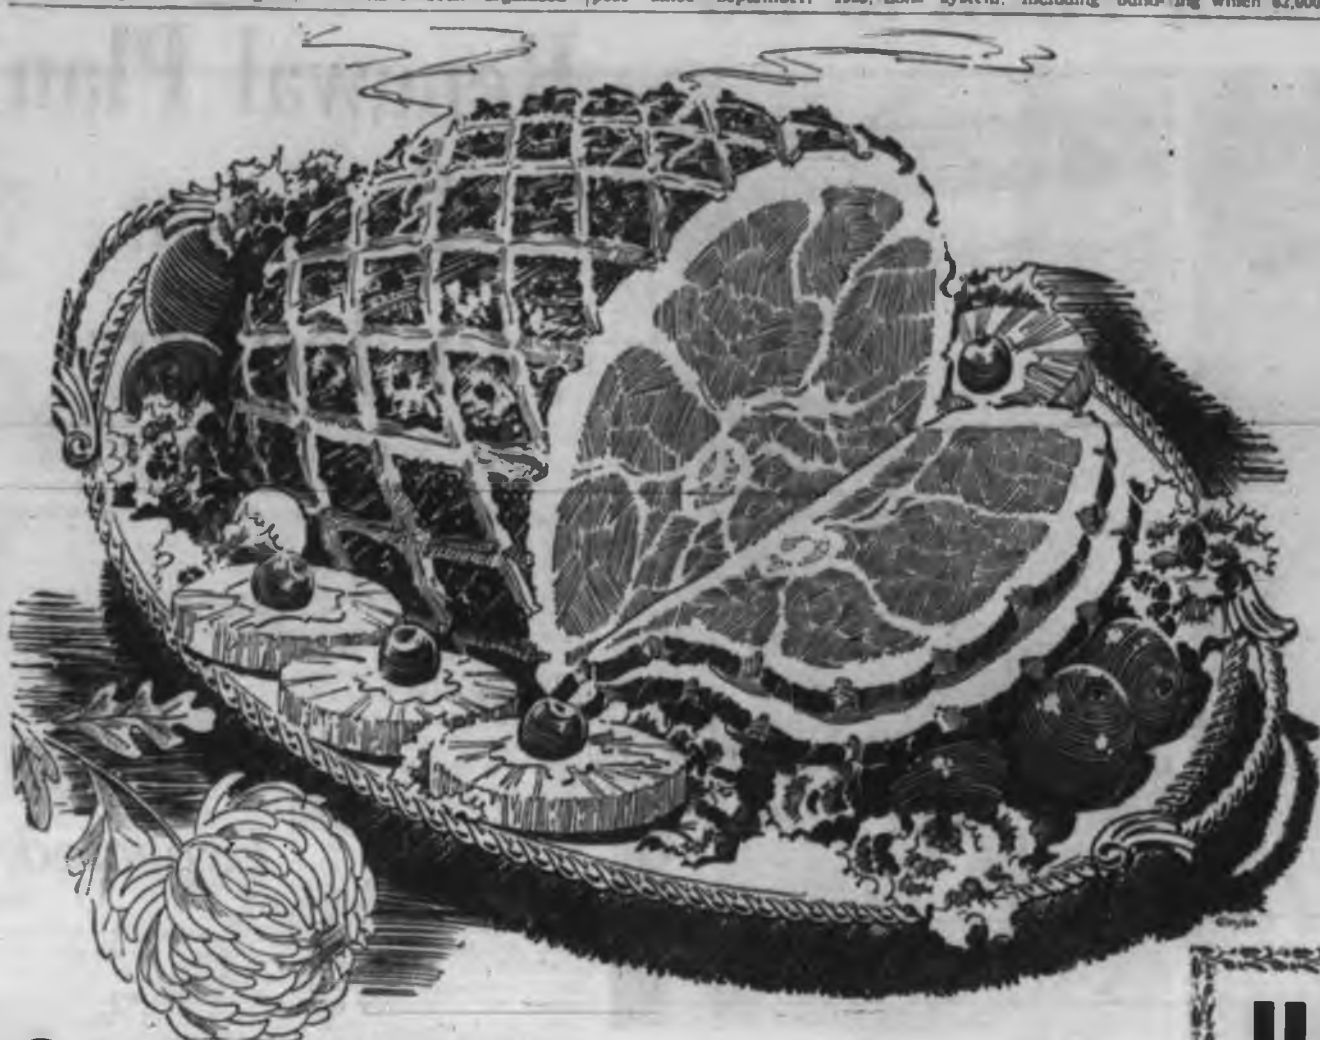

The talks will resume next week.

William E. Simkin, director of the federal mediation and conciliation service, said he is returning to Washington and there will remain "subject to the call" of the mediation service.

Simkin said the dispute remained just as it was when printers went on strike at 2 a.m.

Saturday, Bertram A. Powers, president of the striking International Typographical Union No. 6, reported:

"In all candor, I must say we are in a state of siege. We were unable to resolve our differences. I see little reason to be optimistic."

Architect Wins In Court

VANCOUVER—As a private citizen has the right to present his own case in a court of law, so may a man design his own building, Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton has ruled in B.C. Supreme Court.

In what was considered a test case, the justice dismissed the Architectural Institute of B.C.'s application for an injunction to prevent Lionel Francour of Nanaimo from practicing as an architect.

SUITES RENTED

The institute claimed Francour built four apartment blocks in and around Nanaimo on property he owned, each worth more than $25,000.

It also said Francour is not registered with the B.C. Architectural Institute and does not hold a license under the Architectural Professions Act.

OTHER THAN

The act says an architect is a person who is engaged in the planning and supervision of the erecting and enlargement or alteration of buildings for persons other than himself.

The court was asked to interpret the words "for other than himself." Mr. Justice Wootton held Francour was planning for himself.

Attendants Reinstated

A provincial health department spokesman yesterday announced reinstatement of two suspended Colquitz mental home attendants and deferment of a probe into inmate mistreatment.

The suspensions, announced by the department Monday, arose from testimony given at a preliminary hearing into a charge of attempted murder against another Colquitz attendant, Peter Howard Dootson.

Legal circles were privately appalled at the timing of the suspensions because the hearing has not ended and both men were witnesses.

It is believed the attorney-general's department may have suggested withdrawal of the suspensions and deferment of the investigation.

LAST THING

"The last thing we want is to be an impediment to justice," a health official said yesterday.

He said the two suspended attendants, William Higgs and Allan H. Cosh, will have their pay restored and will return to duty.

Further action in connection with the testimony brought out at the Dootson hearing will be deferred until after the preliminary is concluded.

ONCE PRISON

A departmental personnel official, Jack Dowling of Vancouver, commenced the probe at Colquitz earlier this week.

The institution houses the criminally insane and was once used as a prison.

Health department officials announced almost a year ago that it is to be closed and that no new admissions would be accepted there. But indications yesterday were that final closure of Colquitz is still about a year away.

JFK Scores Hit

Voice Teddy's Says Expert

WASHINGTON (CP)—Reporters who had been trying to learn from presidential aides what President Kennedy thinks about the numerous memes of his voice and mannerisms, went to the top for their story Wednesday.

At the president's press conference, a question was put.

"Mr. President," the questioner said, "it has been a long time since a president and his family have been subjected to such a heavy barrage of teasing and fun-poking and satire. There have been books... and cartoons with clever sayings, and photo albums with balloons and the rest, and now there is a smash hit record. Can you tell us whether you read and listen to these things, and whether they produce annoyance or enjoyment?"

The answer: "Annoyment. Yes, I have read them and listened to them and actually I listened to Mr. Meader's record, but I thought it sounded more like Teddy than it did me, so he's annoyed."

Teddy is the president's youngest brother, now a senator. The president was referring to Vaughan Meader, a comedian whose record The First Family has sold copies by the hundreds of thousands. He imitates the president on the record.

Earlier, it was learned that the use of a Meader recording to promote a Washington radio station caused a flurry in the Kennedy administration last weekend. The voice was taken off the air before the White House could deliver a formal protest.

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said Wednesday he had called station WWDC from Palm Springs, Calif., last Saturday to object, but learned a station break recording of the voice of Meader had already been discarded.

Salinger said he considered "use of mimicry of the president's voice for a commercial purpose" not fitting. It was understood that other radio stations which have been using the promotion recording also have received requests to discontinue them.

In Vancouver, news director Jim Nelson of radio station CFUN said the station had bought a Meader promotional tape from a U.S. company to publicize the station.

Nelson said he believed no other Canadian station had taken the offer.

The station received a wire from Salinger Wednesday, asking that the Meader tape not be used. Salinger said there was a chance a listener may tune into the commercial halfway through and think it was the president boasting CFUN.

The tape had not been used, and Nelson said it wouldn't be.

Repairs Set At Varsity

Victoria University development board is withholding $85,000 of the contract price for the new Clearview classroom block on Gordon Head campus, it was learned yesterday.

The balance won't be paid to the Vancouver firm of Sorenson Construction Ltd. until 31 minor faults in the building listed by the architects are repaired. Consulting architect Robert Siddall said the work is in progress.

Esquimalt council will hold its final meeting for the year on Dec. 20 at 7:30 p.m.

Storm Victim

Dairyman F. A. Rudd Dies at 74

Injured during a heavy storm Dec. 1, Saanich dairy farmer Fred A. Rudd, 74, died in St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday.

Mr. Rudd slipped and hit his head on a concrete slab during the Dec. 1 storm when he went outside to check on the condition of a barn which was being destroyed by the high winds.

A brother, George, died recently.

Mr. Rudd was a long-time dairy farmer, beginning his herd at 785 West Burnside in the early 1920s. At the time of his death the farm ran more than 60 cows, making it one of the largest dairy operations on Vancouver Island.

Mr. Rudd was a widower. He is survived by a son, Fred, who manages a Sooke farm; daughters Gladys and Muriel, and four sisters.

Federation To Probe Pay Boosts

The Civil Service Federation of Canada may take up the cause of Victoria civil servants who felt aggrieved by the recent wage increase granted by Ottawa. It was learned last night.

Gordon Campbell, president of the Victoria District Council representing some 3,500 federation members here, said after a civil servants' meeting last night that there have been "rumors from Grades 1 and 2 clerks who had the impression pay raises would be applicable to all clerical pay grades."

"The federation will look into it, and if it feels there is a case for Grades 1 and 2 clerks and typists, it will try to do something about it," Mr. Campbell said.

$50 Stolen

Thieves kicked in a basement window and made off with about $50 in cash from the bedroom of a house owned by J. H. Macrie, 517 Rupert Street, last night. Police said only the bedroom was ransacked.

Hillcrest Issue Over Free Bus Returns

DUNCAN—The long Hillcrest Lumber Co. bus dispute ended yesterday when the company decided to resume full free bus service for IWA member-loggers to Measchik Lake from both Duncan and Lake Cowichan.

The 70 loggers had been "idle" since last Jan. 2 after the company withdrew the service as an economy measure. The Lake Cowichan run was reinstated in June in a temporary settlement.

Company director Peter Stone said the new move "can hardly be called a settlement but we have no alternative," while an IWA official said the men still have to give their consent.

BANANAS ARE IMPORTED for the same reasons that LEMON HART RUMS
ARE IMPORTED

Bananas are not native to Canada... and neither are rum. Lemon Hart, for example, is produced under the most wonderful conditions in the Caribbean. But for Lemon Hart, even that is not enough: it's shipped to London where it rests quietly in underground vaults where neither the temperature nor the humidity varies more than a degree or two year in year out. Then, meticulously blended and bottled it's finally shipped to Canada... smooth, mellow, delicious... a perfect product of that small area of the world that is famous for distinguished rum.

memo to advertisers

People who pay to shop

Most retailers, we suspect, would shudder at the idea of charging customers an admission fee to shop in their stores.

Yet, we do it regularly. Readers buy this paper for the news and features, but they also buy it to see your advertising. They want to know what you are selling, what your prices are, and compare this with what another merchant is advertising.

Readers are shoppers, and people who pay to shop, shop to buy.

Your advertising reaches them as an invited guest. They study it at their leisure, and they will respond if what you have to say interests them.

Who measures this paying audience?

As members of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, we submit our circulation records to regular inspection by traveling ABC auditors. This is an organization of nearly 4,000 advertisers, advertising agencies, and publishers, whose sole purpose is to give accurate and factual circulation reports.

ABC measures our circulation audience, in accordance with the highest industry standards.

Its reports tell how many shoppers buy our paper, where they buy it, what they pay, and many other facts to help you know our paying audience.

For full details on the people who pay to shop, ask to see a copy of our latest ABC report.

Scene of Beating Blood-Spattered

By DON MATHESON

A blood-spattered room where Colquitz psychiatric aide Robert Robinson was found badly beaten and burned was described in Saanich police court yesterday.

Det. Saanich Robin Stewart described the room at the mental home staff quarters during testimony at the preliminary hearing of Peter Howard Dootson, charged with attempting to murder Robinson Oct. 18.

ALMOST TO CEILING

One wall, eight feet, 10 inches high, was spattered with blood from "the head of the bed almost to the ceiling," Det. Stewart said.

Another wall was spattered across its nine-foot width, and there had been other marks near a light switch.

A carpet and towel found on the floor "both had red stains on them," Det. Stewart testified.

"The room was quite heavily covered in feathers," he added.

PANTS DISCOVERED

A search outside the building uncovered a pair of tan corduroy pants, both legs of which had "red stains."

The grass where they were found was very wet with dew, Det. Stewart said, but parts of the pants were "dry."

The pants had been found near an outside stairway to the staff building, he said.

Det. Stewart said he went to Dootson's room in the staff building the next day, and "I took with me when I left one pair of shoes. . . . They had a lot of feathers on them, a bit of black material and they were slightly damp."

IDENTIFIES SHOES

He identified the shoes as an exhibit entered earlier in the hearing.

The following day, in company with other detectives, he had returned to the staff quarters to search Dootson's room for "a pair of tan pants, a wine shirt and a piece of a pants pocket," Det. Stewart said.

He testified that "the pants found in the grass had their right-hand front pocket . . . torn or cut off and that left a partial initial at that point . . ."

Most of the hearing yesterday was taken by two "trial-within-trials" concerning admissibility of certain conversations held by Saanich detectives.

The hearing continues today at 2 p.m.

Toronto Paper Rebels

TORONTO (UPI)—The Toronto Globe and Mail, in its Thursday edition published last night, said that beginning immediately it will not accept hold-for-release news items but will publish facts as soon as they become known.

In a front page announcement, the newspaper said that its editor and publisher, Oakeley Dalgleish, had become increasingly concerned "at the tendency of governments, organizations and individuals to distribute material to press with the stipulation that it could not be printed until a specified day and hour."

He said there was "no doubt that such release times were used to obtain maximum impact for the interested parties."

Firemen Quick But Fire Out

Fire in a rear room of a Sidney drug store yesterday was already out by the time firemen arrived.

Firemen were quick enough, but Cunningham Drug Store assistant manager Melvin Webb was faster. He grabbed a fire extinguisher when a furnace in the rear of the store at 2459 Beacon Avenue, started smoking.

No damage was reported.

Small Bungalow

Hot Iron Blamed In Colwood Fire

A hot iron has been blamed tentatively for a fire yesterday morning which swept through the bedroom of a small bungalow at 214 Hart Road in Colwood owned by Richard Carson.

A Colwood fire department official said last night the unplugged iron had been found on a desk in the room. The desk appeared to be the source of the fire's origin. Firemen said the iron could have been placed on end then fallen down while still hot, kindling the blaze.

Neighbors noticed the house filled with smoke between 10 and 15 minutes after the owners left about 10 a.m. The fire damaged a wall, plugged iron had been found on a desk in the room. The Damage was estimated at $800.

Christmas Big Time

WINNIPEG (CP)—Christmas is not a sometime thing for the Eskimos of Canada's northland, nor for those who have to supply them with their wants.

Christmas is one of the two high points of the year for almost every Eskimo, the other being Easter. They gather at remote Hudson's Bay Company outposts to meet friends for a few brief days, purchase supplies for the bitter winter and to attend church services.

DEPENDS ON LOCATION
An official at Hudson's Bay House here said Christmas for the Eskimos depends on the location and size of the nearest community and the sophistication of the Eskimos of the area.

At some of the larger communities, she said, Christmas will be observed in much the same manner as elsewhere in Canada. At the more remote posts it also will include dog sled races and other Eskimo sports.

To make sure Christmas presents are received in time, a year ahead. The manager and his wife are generally the centre of activity in the smaller communities with the form of the festivities left to their discretion and their knowledge of their people.

Daisy Willick, 41, said the water in six inches deep in her living room and in frozen solid.

Health authorities say the water supply in the flooded area, known as Sleepy Hollow, will be contaminated by the flood.

Roman Catholic and Protestant women's auxiliaries and the children of RCAF personnel at the station collect and wrap the gifts of clothing, food and toys.

The project is a voluntary effort undertaken by pilots making training flights over the area and has no official connection with the RCAF.

Unsold Power Blamed For Bonneville Deficits

SPOKANE (AP)—Financial losses of the Bonneville Power Administration in recent years can be traced to unsold power and energy, the BPA's comptroller said Wednesday.

"We have had enough power to go to waste to more than offset our losses," Earl Osterlander told about 100 delegates to a meeting of the Columbia Basin inter-agency committee.

Rates, fixed in 1938 and 1939, were still adequate, he said.

Anglican Bishops Oppose Tax Bid

TORONTO (CP)—The Anglican bishops of Ontario Wednesday opposed any move to give the province's Roman Catholic schools a larger share of corporation taxes or to extend the tax-supported system to secondary schools.

The Anglican bishops, in a memorandum presented to the legislature, said granting the tax requests "would cause a violent disruption of the public and secondary school system and do a definite disservice to the community as a whole."

Loved Cigars And Children

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. Josefina Encarnacion, a tiny woman who loved cigars and children almost equally, is dead.

She was either 112, 114 or 115 years old, no one knew for sure, not even Mrs. Encarnacion.

Mrs. Encarnacion was a small woman—about four feet 10 inches and 80 pounds. In her native Puerto Rico she reared about 30 adopted children, swearing by "spicy food, a good cigar and good drink of strong rum" as the sustaining forces in her incredibly healthy life.

She died Tuesday in a nursing home where she had lived since April.

Basil FitzGibbon that Man in the Kitchen

By BASIL FITZGIBBON

The origin of the turkey is uncertain. Some authorities believe that it comes from Bermuda—or the West Indies, others believe that it's original habitat was North America, and it is considered one of the finest gifts made by the New World to the Old. In any event, a great number of people nowadays are convinced that Christmas without a turkey is no Christmas at all. Personally, I prefer a delectable goose, but agree that a well-cooked turkey can be a satisfying and rewarding dish.

The selection of the bird is most important. Whenever possible, a bird which has not been frozen should be chosen. The skin should be the color of rich cream, and the flesh firm. If, however, you are not in a position to buy an unfrozen bird, make sure that your purchase is thoroughly thawed before preparing it for the oven.

There are many suggested methods for roasting a turkey, but my experience leads me to believe that the method employed depends on the size of the bird and the circumstances under which it is to be cooked. For example, a medium-sized bird, 9 to 14 lbs., is best cooked without the use of a paper bag or a wrapping of aluminum foil. If the cook has the time and the patience to baste the bird every fifteen to twenty minutes. If circumstances are such that the bird has to be left to its own devices for the major part of the cooking time, I suggest that the cook wrap the bird in aluminum foil or put it into a large paper bag, and cook it in a slow oven (300°-325°), allow twenty minutes cooking time per pound, and for the last half hour, remove the covering and baste the bird and continue cooking until the bird has browned nicely. An alternative method which will reduce the amount of basting required is to cover the bird with a piece of cheesecloth, folded double and well soaked in melted butter or lard. When this method is employed, basting can be reduced to once every forty-five minutes or so. Once again the covering is removed during the last thirty minutes of cooking to allow the bird to brown.

The preparation of the bird for cooking is simple enough. Remove the giblets from the inside of the bird and wash the bird thoroughly inside and out. Dry with a clean towel or paper-towel. Rub salt and pepper inside the bird and fill with your favorite dressing or dressings. Personally, I like to use a good dressing in the body cavity and a well-seasoned country sausage meat in the crop cavity. Here is a good recipe for dressing:

CHESTNUT DRESSING
The following recipe is for a small bird 8-10 lbs. Double or triple the recipe according to the size of your bird.
Well and skin three cups of chestnuts and cook them in boiling water until soft. Put the chestnuts through a potato ricer or a blender and combine with: 1/2 cup melted butter, 1 tspn. salt, 1/2 tspn. pepper, 1/2 cup of cream, 1 cup dry bread crumbs or cracker crumbs, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 1/2 cup chopped celery, 1 tspn. grated onion.
I use a good size wooden salad bowl to mix my dressing, and mix the dry ingredients thoroughly before adding the melted butter and the cream. I allow the dressing to stand for a half hour before putting it into the bird.
Once the bird is dressed and the body cavity sewn up, I rub the bird with salt and butter or lard, and then truss it making sure that the skin covering the crop cavity is well secured. Good luck with your turkey, and have a good Christmas. Bon appetit!

FOR LUCK

Believe it or not, you can eat your way to 12 months of prosperity. According to an old Irish superstition, a bite of salt herring in the first second of the new year will assure you of plenty of money. For the luck of the Irish, a holiday hostess might serve Digby Chicks (salted and smoked herring fillets) as hors d'oeuvres at a New Year's Eve party.

'All So Sad, So Bad'

By ZENA CHERRY

It was advertised as the romantic exotic Paris of the Caribbean.

It was too!
I liked Cuba.
And sometimes I think of the fairy-tale buildings, pink and blue, yellow and green, but mostly white. The famed promenade El Prado; the sea-wall driveway Malecon, unique in the world; the handsome dark men in spotless starched white guayabera shirts.

The Yacht Club served the best daiquiris, never duplicated anywhere else, even on the island. The Country Club's memorable, delicious flan dessert.

The white Capitol building in Havana had a diamond in the floor.

The foyer of the National Museum had this inscribed quote from Martí who led the 1895 revolution, "Among the dreams of man there is one that is most beautiful—to overcome darkness."

The orphanage, Casa de Beneficencia, had a small wooden door in the brick wall. It opened to reveal a gaily painted turntable, divided into compartments. Here you could deposit a baby—a baby you could not support, or did not want. The weight of the child caused a bell to ring inside the building and a nun came running to embrace the new arrival.

Funny how your mind goes back to food—the big-clawed succulent rock-crab known as moro crab and found nowhere else but in the surrounding azure seas. It was the only place I've ever had fresh pineapple juice—there were big machines on every corner to squeeze the fruit.
It's all so sad, so bad. The terrible terrifying thought I'm left with is, "How long before other West Indies islands go the same communistic way."

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: You will never print this letter but writing it may be an outlet for me, and heaven knows I need it.

The person who wrote to say psychiatry is a racket is so right. I can verify it from personal experience.

We decided our daughter needed some outside guidance. She was moody and hard to deal with. So we put her into analysis. That was four years ago. Her therapy has transformed a typical teen-age problem-child into an impossible teen-age monster. And to top it all off, it is costing us a fortune.

She simply loves the sessions with her analyst. She never asks us about anything. She discusses everything with him. This girl will never be able to marry because no husband would tolerate her attachment to the doctor.

I'm sure she is trapped for life. And so are we. I regret the day we started with psychiatry. O.K. Now you can throw this letter away—HAD IT FROM THE HEADSHRINKERS.

Dear Had It: You may feel trapped but your daughter apparently feels fine. She has found someone with whom she can communicate—and you should be grateful. It is obvious that she was never able to communicate with either of her parents.

Instead of fighting her therapy, you should support it—not only for her sake, but for yours.

Dear Ann Landers: A close relative gave our child a $25 cheque for confirmation. The cheque bounced. Stamped across the face of it was "insufficient funds."

This relative is well-to-do and we can't understand why the cheque did not clear. It doesn't seem possible that she doesn't have $25 in the bank.

My husband says we should say nothing and let the matter drop. I don't agree with him. Would it be in bad taste to send the cheque back to the relative? Or should I talk to someone at the bank about it? Please advise. This is a sticky one.

—DILEMMA.

Dear Dilemma: Put the cheque through a second time, with a note asking if the bank was in error. Banks seldom make mistakes but they are not infallible. It is possible your relative changed banks and intentionally allowed this account to be depleted.

If the cheque bounces a second time say nothing.

DIPPERS

Some folk like to mix seafood in a dip, while others prefer to serve it as the dipper. Two popular seafood dippers are small shrimp and nuggets of cooked lobster meat, speared on picks.

the whole mess by minding my own business.—OUT OF CHEEKS TO TURN.

Dear Out: Thanks for your letter. Maybe medical societies and bar associations ought to consider Good Samaritan laws for the other 39?

I am a doctor who spent the better part of a night saving the lives of four drunks who were involved in a serious automobile accident. My thanks came three weeks later when their attorneys charged me with "neglect."

Besides the night's sleep, I lost several hours securing records to prove my innocence. I then spent many anxious days preparing my own defence. Added to this was the notoriety and public suspicion even though the charge against me was false.

It may be true that 11 states now have Good Samaritan laws but when I drive into a new state from now on, I'm going to be too busy following road signs to remember whether that state happens to be one of the 11. I'd rather avoid

Jubilee Alumnae Plans Spring Fashion Show

The Nurses' Alumnae of the Royal Jubilee Hospital met at the Nurses' Residence on Monday.

Plans were made for a Spring Fashion Show to be convened by Mrs. R. Bolt and Mrs. A. Moutant at the Nurses' Residence on Feb. 7.

Mrs. Owen reported the sum of over $1,200 was realized to date in the "Jessie McKenzie Memorial Fund." This will be used for furnishings in the new wing of the hospital.

Among the guests for the evening were 37 nurses who will graduate in January. They were welcomed by president, Mrs. W. Davenport and given Christmas corsages with their first year's membership. The short business meeting was followed by an interesting talk by Mr. F. Bruce of the Hudsons' Bay Co. on "Carpeting in our homes."

The evening ended with a delightful buffet supper under the able co-operation of Mrs. G. McCann.

Coming Year's Car Coat Truly One for the Road

Car coats this season are named after sports cars.

When is a car coat really a car coat? When it's named after a car, of course! Yet, strange as it seems, although these jauntily styled coats have been growing more popular by the mile, the just-released 1963 crop is the first collection actually designed for car-riding comfort and named for the "steel sisters" from which they originate.

Thus, for the first time in 1963, the coat comes into its own and is truly one for the road! There's an MG coat, a Sprite Jacket, the Jag fur-collared model and so on. Like their car-counterparts, the sporty newcomers are new in style, colour and comfort.

RUSTIC COLORS

The coat most likely to succeed this winter is a double-breasted "A" silhouette narrowed through the shoulder and widened carefully at the hemline. Colors take their cue from the outdoors—Curry, a lightened dark brown, and greyed russets vie with vibrant raspberry reds and winter-sky blues.

Easy-does-it is the rule for hemlines running from fingertip to seven-eighths length. Breeze-proof stand-up collars and mushroom-hoods are preferred. Fur is news at the neckline for "that touch of mink."

TRENCH COATS

Foreign-intrigue trenchcoat styles are seen in almost every collection. The British MG coat in "curried" cotton with authentic blanket lining in orange with curry-color stripes is a fashion leader.

Another popular model is the Austin Healey Sprite jacket, shaped like a cut-out skinny Chesterfield. With these coats the emphasis is on a softer more dressmaker look as opposed to strictly military lines. Belts are often optional, pulling through detachable side loops—as first seen in the Paris coat collections early this fall.

Again, too, linings button in and out to suit the climate, making the car coat truly an all-weather classic.

This year we can answer the call of the open road in style!

A triple-christening took place recently in St. John's Anglican Church when the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas received the names, Ruth Ellen and the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Sinclair were baptized Susan Kathleen and Sandra Gene. Mr. and Mrs. Sinclair and Mrs. G. Gaunt will be godparents for Ruth and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. A. Cathers, godparents of Sandra and Susan. Ruth's grandparents are Mrs. A. Thomas and the late Mr. Harry Thomas and Mr. E. Ratcliffe and the late Mrs. Ratcliffe. The twins' grandparents are Mrs. G. Abbott and the late Mr. Abbott and the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sinclair.

Group Holds Klondike Night

The War Amputations of Canada Hall was the scene of a gay Klondike evening when the members of Xi Nu Chapter Beta Sigma Phi entertained husbands and friends at their recent Christmas party.

Entertainment in keeping with the theme included a lively can-can chorus and old songs and melodies of that time. Guests were welcomed by Mrs. Fred Breen and Mrs. P. Smith who were the conveners for the evening.

Eastern Fashions Set for Spring

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) — The nation's trend-setting designers, completing spring openings in New York, are offering Easter parade fashions for every taste and shape.

Their smorgasbord includes silhouettes for the tall-thin, the short-plump. The thin-short and the tall-plump figures.

Stressed repeated in collections of clothes that will be in stores by January was the pullover or nautical look. The pullovers, buttoned down the back, make suit jackets. But the pullovers go into evening and daytime dresses and costumes, too.

SLENDER LINE

COATS come slender and full, but the big trend is to the slender silhouette, usually with a set-in belt, set-in sleeves, flaps on pockets. Almost always, a coat is set off by a scarf that trails or is tied in a bow at the neck.

SUITS come mostly long jacketed, buttoned in front and buttoned in back. Some

Crews Not Unhappy Says Ferry Manager

Reports that B.C. government ferry employees are dissatisfied with their working hours are false, manager Monty Aldous said Wednesday.

Mr. Aldous was answering criticism from the B.C. Government Employees' Association which said employees were unhappy having to work 10 to 14 hours and sometimes for 28 days in a row.

Mr. Aldous said that although ferry crews are not on eight-hour shifts, they don't work more than 40 hours a week.

He said employees are quite satisfied with their shifts.

War Medals Arrive Unasked

EDMONTON (CP) — Ed Cawker of Edmonton received his Second World War medals by mail from Ottawa this week—18 years after his discharge from the RCAF.

Cawker said he never asked for them, but he has a theory:

"They found a warehouse full of the medals and in order to sell the building they had them sent out."

Forest Losses Low

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's 8,430,000 acres ravaged by forest fire losses this year were the second lowest on record, the federal forestry department reported Wednesday.

The department, issuing its final estimate for the 1962 fire season between April and October, said 6,078 fires burned over about 457,000 acres.

This year's low losses were attributed to a cool wet summer and compare favorably with last season's record toll of 8,430,000 acres.

Heaviest losses this year were recorded in Quebec, Manitoba, New Brunswick and British Columbia.

Since national forest fire statistics began to be compiled in 1919, the only better year was in 1954 when 266,000 acres were burned out.

Fast Police Work Finds Young Thief

Fast work by Det. Angus Munro resulted in the arrest of a smash-and-grab thief 6 1/2 hours after the offence, city police court was told yesterday.

Before the court was Edwin D. Brand, 19, of 1710 Fort Street, who admitted the theft of two transistor radios and an electric shaver from a window of Harold's Repair Shop, 1834 Oak Bay.

Det. Munro told Magistrate William Ostler that Brand smashed the store window about 4 a.m. Dec. 11 and stole the goods.

About 10:30 a.m. the same day Det. Munro saw Brand on Pandora Avenue with one of the stolen radios and arrested him. The other radio and the shaver were found in his room. Value of the goods was set at $100.19.

Brand was remanded to Dec. 19 for sentence.

In Sooke court Tuesday, three juvenile girls were charged with the theft of three coats from a local dance hall Nov. 24. They pleaded guilty.

Esquimalt Staff Given Holidays

Extra holidays for municipal employees at Christmas and New Year's have been approved by Esquimalt council. Employees will be given Dec. 24 and 31 off as privilege holidays.

Two were given suspended sentences. The third was remanded for sentence.

John Vantilborg of Sooke was fined $50 for making false statements to obtain benefits from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

G. V. Eaton, enforcement officer for the UIC, told Magistrate E. Murphy that Vantilborg obtained benefits for three weeks—$108—and at the same time he was employed by Goodrich Sawmills of Victoria and earned a total of $196.52.

Vantilborg was fined $25 on each of two charges.

Missing Whoopers Claimed Over B.C.

VERNON (CP) — A Salmon River farmer thinks he may have solved the mystery of six whooping cranes that failed to show up at the U.S. government wildlife refuge in Arkansas, Tex.

Farmer Emil Needoba says he saw the six birds winging south over his farm last week. He said he was able to identify the birds' large white wings and black tips.

Scenery Best Seller On Christmas Cards

By MIKE GADSEY

Scenic Christmas cards are the biggest sellers this year in Victoria, according to spokesmen from several retail card merchants. A trend to modern design in cards of a few years ago has definitely fallen off, one spokesman said.

"The modern cards are definitely not in very great demand this year."

LIMITED APPEAL

"Religious Christmas cards are running second to the scenic greetings," he added, while humorous and comic cards "have a very limited appeal."

"A surprising newcomer this year is the card with a built-in envelope for sending money. Although these have appeared before, there has been a tremendous upsurge in demand for them," another said.

"Most cards are sold in boxes which contain 20 or 25 different cards for one price. There is also demand for boxes of cards with the same design but the variety pack has the edge."

"People still go for poetic messages in Christmas cards," he said, "but there is also a trend to more simple, brief messages."

EVEN MILKMEN

One salesman pointed out the trend toward cards with messages directed to a particular person.

"Now," he said, "you can send specific greetings to anyone you want — your doctor, lawyer, minister or even your milkman."

Kennedy Applauds

Adlai's Advice Stays Secret

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy yesterday applauded Adlai Stevenson's work as ambassador to the UN but refused to tell about the advice given by Stevenson during the Cuban crisis.

"The president faced a series of questions at his news conference growing out of the furor created by a recent magazine article saying Stevenson had taken a soft line before Kennedy's Oct. 22 decision to order a blockade. While declining to discuss what advice he was given by Stevenson and National Security Council members, he did say Stevenson had done an excellent job and had performed distinguished service for the U.S. at the UN. He said he was surprised anyone should infer he was dissatisfied with Stevenson.

At the same time, Kennedy refused to criticize the authors of the article, Charles Bartlett, a close personal friend, and Stewart Alsop.

He said the presidency is not a good place to make new friends and he wanted to keep his old ones.

Manitoba Election

TV Deserted for Hustings

WINNIPEG (CP)—Electronic campaigning gave way to plain old-fashioned vote-hunting Wednesday night as candidates got in their last kicks before Friday's Manitoba general election.

Premier Duff Roblin was speaking for the Progressive Conservatives in the western Manitoba centre in Neepawa, while Liberal Leader G.H. McGeach was appearing in St. Claude southwest of Winnipeg.

Like most Progressive Conservative cabinet ministers and leading Liberals, NDP Leader A.R. Paulley was restricting his vote hunt to his own riding of Radisson, on the northeastern edge of Greater Winnipeg.

For the Liberals, two former provincial cabinet ministers helped beat the last drums of the campaign although neither is running in this election. Former agriculture minister C.L. Shuttleworth spoke in Killarney and former provincial secretary Edmond Prefontaine spoke in Hamiota.

Mr. Prefontaine's son, Rene, is running as a Progressive Conservative candidate in the southeastern riding of La Verendrye.

Television campaigning wound up Tuesday at midnight under Canadian broadcasting regulations. The climax of the campaign on the air was a one-hour television debate matching Mr. Roblin, Mr. McGeach and Mr. Paulley, as well as J.M. Friesen, Social Credit campaign leader.

After the debate was over, Mr. Roblin told the others: "We'll continue this in the house."

Standing at dissolution was: Progressive Conservative 34, Liberal 10, NDP 9, Social Credit 1, vacant 3, Total 57. Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. CST.

U.S. Opens Trial Of Communists

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An attorney for the U.S. Communist party told a U.S. district court jury yesterday he would try to prove the party did not wilfully refuse to register with the attorney general.

The party is on trial under the 1950 Subversive Activities Control Act charged with defying a government order to register as a Communist-action organization.

ORDER FINAL

John Abt, one of two attorneys representing the party, told the jury of eight women and four men that the party agreed with the government position that there was no attempt to register after being ordered to do so by the Sub-

Crash Hurts Two Sailors

Two able seamen from HMCS Naden suffered minor injuries in a 3 a.m. accident yesterday on the Malahat near Goldstream Park.

Driver David Hodgson, 29, of Princeton, is being detained in HMCS Naden hospital for observation. Passenger James Halverson, 23, of Kenford, Alta., was released after treatment.

Their car was in collision with a semi-trailer on a curve on the Malahat. Driver of the trailer was not injured.

versive Activities Control Board.

The board's order became final on Oct. 20, 1961, and the party was indicted on Dec. 1, 1961, on 12 counts of failing to register.

If convicted the party can be fined up to $120,000. Two officers of the party, Gus Hall and Benjamin Davis, have been indicted for failure to register but no date has been set for their trial.

VIOLATE RIGHTS

Abt told the jury that the party contended all along that it was not a Communist-action organization as defined by the board and that registration as such would violate its rights under the fifth amendment. The fifth amendment provides protection against self-incrimination.

The board has defined a Communist-action organization as one dominated and controlled by the worldwide Communist movement based in the Soviet Union.

BETTER JAIL

Kirk Maddix, a justice department attorney, said the government would attempt to prove that the party was guilty simply by failing to register after the board had ordered it to do so.

He said Hall, general chairman of the party, and other officers told newsmen in June, 1961, that they would not cooperate with the government and "we would rather spend the rest of our lives in prison."

TORONTO (CP)—Roland MacDonald, 43, was dismissed from his job recently for making a blunder that cost a couple of hundred dollars.

Christmas Rush On

Vacant Lots Sprout Trees

By JACK FRY
Vacant lots throughout Greater Victoria sprouted greenery almost overnight, as Vancouver Island growers and cutters rushed to get their share of a predicted $2,000,000 1962 B.C. Christmas tree business.

Truckloads of trees are rolling into Victoria every day from nearby Salt Spring Island, Sooke, Langford and the up-island area around Campbell River. Tree prices range from 75 cents to about $5, depending upon size and appearance.

The woody aroma of fresh resin now dominates diesel fumes on street corners, where dealers braved chilly weather and choosy customers to get early sales.

SALES SLOW AT FIRST

Sales started slow, are expected to pick up quickly. Tree prices generally are expected to drop somewhat because of heavy competition this year.

Sale of B.C. Christmas trees is expected to top the $2,000,000 wholesale mark, compared with $1,827,000 which came from the cutting of 2,677,000 trees in 1961, said a B.C. forest service spokesman.

Some of the trees from the interior of the province—where cooler temperatures retard growth and produce close-branched trees with short, long-lasting needles—may find their way as far eastward as New York City, where they will fetch up to $20 each on the retail market, he said.

On Vancouver Island, tree growing and selling is generally treated as a part-time business. Victoria businessmen who own property on the Malahat bring trees to town, and factory workers make deals to cut and sell trees from private property.

PART-TIME BUSINESS

A typical operation is the stand at the corner of Douglas and Millside, where shift mill night shift employee Art Emmons brought in several hundred trees from the Sooke area.

He spends his spare time on the lot, and is assisted by Garnet King, 551 David, who is in the navy. Mrs. King handled sales one day, when neither man was available.

Many families in the capital city region will be looking for trees in the country this weekend. It has become quite a tradition to bundle the family off in the car in search of a tree.

Youngsters will be selling trees by the roadside, and trees can sometimes be taken from the highway right-of-way.

It is illegal to cut trees on coastal crown land, because of the government's policy of preserving the trees until they are large enough for use in the pulp, paper, lumber and plywood industries.

Colwood RCMP will conduct periodic roadside checks of Christmas tree shipments in the Colwood-Langford areas, to assist the B.C. Forest Service in seeing that trees are properly scaled and tagged, and that they have not been taken from crown land.

PERMISSION NEEDED

Trees can be taken from private property, if permission is given by the owner. They can also be taken sometimes from the highway right-of-way, if permission is obtained from the department.

Technically, it is illegal to remove trees from the right-of-way, but because the highways department occasionally destroys the trees anyway, lenience is

Girls Out-Penny Boys

Victoria High School girls under the leadership of Christina Scott of 14 Linden Avenue, accepted a challenge from male students and defeated them two-to-one in a penny drive that raised $125 for The Daily Colonist 500 Christmas Fund. Pennies marched side by side down colored tape in the halls during the 10-day effort, but the boys under David English of 3111 Rutledge, couldn't match the depth of resources in girls' handbags.—(W. For Cross-Breeding Only

British Authorities Snub Alberta Heifer

LONDON (CP) — Alberta rancher Rames Rawe conceded first-round defeat Wednesday in the battle of the Charolais bulls, but said doggedly the fight is far from over.

The unsuspecting centre of the argument is quiet-mannered Bebe, a six-month-old pedigree Charolais heifer flown in from Canada to be artificially mated to one of 26 French Charolais bulls now in Britain.

But British agricultural authorities — probably under pressure from British breeders — refuse to allow any transatlantic "marriage of convenience." They say the Charolais bulls are for cross-breeding experiments only.

Rawe told a reporter yesterday that the real reason for British resistance is that "they are scared to death" of the Charolais breed.

BREEDERS SCARED?
"The fact is that the Charolais is superior to any beef animal in the world," said Rawe.

"The British breeders know that and they are scared," Rawe says he plans to keep on trying to get an outside infusion of Charolais blood, "even if we're defeated here."

Victoria Builder, Architect Praised

Building industry of Victoria deserves praise for leadership in ice arena design and construction, Reeve A. C. Wurtele said yesterday.

The University of B.C. is building a $419,000 ice hockey and curling arena patterned after the Esquimalt Sports Centre.

ADAPTS PLANS

The Vancouver consulting engineering firm of A. B. Sanderson and Company Ltd. has adapted plans from the Esquimalt arena, working with Wade, Stockhill and Armour of Victoria, as consulting architects.

Farmer Construction Ltd., of Victoria, which built the Esquimalt project, is general contractor for the UBC arena which is scheduled to be completed by June 1.

FEATHER IN CAP

"This is a real feather in the cap of Victoria architects and contractors," said Reeve Wurtele. "They deserve a real pat on the back."

Construction of the UBC arena is to start immediately. It will have a peaked roof and several minor changes from its counterpart in Esquimalt.

342,000 Unemployed

Total of Jobless Climbs By 59,000 in Month

OTTAWA (CP)—A further rise in Canadian unemployment, up 59,000 from mid-October to 342,000 at mid-November, was reported Wednesday in a joint statement by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the labor department.

The statement said the rise was "about in line with the usual seasonal pattern." The Jobless total was 7,000 less than the 349,000 unemployed in November, 1961.

The unemployment rate advanced to 5.2 per cent of the labor force compared with 4.3 per cent a month earlier. The rate was 5.4 per cent a year earlier and 6.6 per cent two years earlier.

Total employment declined by 36,000 from mid-October to 6,270,000, a movement which the report said was "considerably less than the usual drop in employment at this time of year." Almost all of the decline was in farm employment.

There were 115,000 more people with jobs than a year earlier, but in the 12 months the labor force had risen by 108,000.

The picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	Nov. 1962	Oct. 1962	Nov. 1961
Labor force	6,812	6,809	6,504
Employed	6,270	6,326	6,155

Rusk and de Gaulle Hold 'Cordial' Talk

PARIS (Reuters)—U.S. State Secretary Rusk held a "very friendly and cordial" hour-long meeting with French President de Gaulle Wednesday, the eve of a NATO ministerial council session.

An American spokesman said Rusk brought de Gaulle up to date on the Cuban situation during a "general discussion of East-West matters" at the Elysee Palace.

Another American source said de Gaulle expressed satisfaction with the American handling of the Cuban crisis during the "very friendly and cordial" meeting.

Rusk was joined here by U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara who flew from London after talks on the future of the controversial U.S. Skybolt missile with Defence Minister Thorpe of Britain.

The U.S. apparently wants to scrap the missile but Britain objects on grounds the British nuclear force is built around the vehicle, designed to be carried by plane and launched 1,100 miles from target.

PARIS (AP)—Mona Lisa, the enigmatic lady of the Louvre, packed Wednesday for a goodwill mission to the United States.

Injury Boost Seen

VANCOUVER (CP)—The International Woodworkers of America said Wednesday an amendment approved by the board of industrial relations "could kill and maim more loggers than any other circumstance in the last 20 years."

The union said it was notified Monday by the board that the Hours of Work Act has been amended to extend a list of exceptions calling for an eight-hour day or 44-hour week.

"This year has already seen a production speed-up accompanied by more logging fatalities than in any other year since 1947," Bob Ross, IWA regional safety director, said in a statement.

Safe-Driving Week Scheduled for Review

OTTAWA (CP) — The future of Safe-Driving Week in Canada will be reviewed at a meeting here Jan. 16, Arch Bryce, executive-director of the Canadian Highway Safety Council, said Wednesday.

The annual review of whether to continue or discontinue the program will be undertaken by the general managers of the provincial safety councils and the executive of the Canadian Highway Safety Council.

In this year's campaign during the week of Dec. 1-7, The Canadian Press reported 70 road fatalities compared with 49 last year.

Mr. Bryce said Wednesday the council wanted to wait until the fatality figures for all December have been compiled before judging on this year's experience, which appeared to be an adverse performance.

Although last year's figures had been much lower, he said at this time of year an average of 77 persons are killed in road accidents each week.

He noted that 33 of 42 Canadian cities with a population of more than 40,000 had experienced a fatality-free week.

MP Queries Spy Case

MOSCOW (Reuters) — A member of the British Parliament said Wednesday he has asked to see Soviet Premier Khrushchev to express concern over the case of London businessman Greville Wynne, held as a spy by the Russians.

Anthony Courtney, an expert consultant who visits Russia about three times each year, said he did not want to comment on the "rights or wrongs" of Wynne's case. The Russian says Wynne has pleaded guilty to espionage.

Courtney said he made his request to see Khrushchev Nov. 21 while in Moscow on his way to Peking for trade talks with Communist China but so far had got no reply.

Courtney said "if this sort of thing is going to start up again it is a very bad augury... they (the Russians) are giving enough not to bother about this sort of thing so much."

Russia announced Tuesday that a Soviet scientific worker who had contacts with United States and British intelligence through Wynne had been arrested.

The Soviet news agency Tass identified the man as O. V. Penkovsky and said he was accused of collecting secret scientific information for the U.S. and Britain.

Tass described Penkovsky as

Remarks On Douks Attacked

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — T. A. McRae, chairman of the Kootenay and Boundary Citizens' Committee on Doukhobor-Canadian Affairs, has protested to the CBC over a television panelist's remarks concerning the treatment of Doukhobors in British Columbia.

Mr. McRae said in a statement he will ask for a public apology for "unwarranted and ill-informed" remarks he said were made by Gordon Sinclair on the Doukhobor situation during the Tuesday night showing of Front Page Challenge.

He gave reporters a copy of a telegram he said he sent to producers of the show in Toronto:

"On your program Dec. 11, Mr. Gordon Sinclair passed several unwarranted and ill-informed remarks re the Doukhobor situation in B.C. We demand in the name of the citizens of B.C. a full public apology by Sinclair on the CBC news networks."

Mr. McRae said indignation was aroused by Mr. Sinclair's likening of the handling of the Doukhobor problem in the treatment of Canadian-Japanese during the Second World War.

Mr. Sinclair is a columnist with the Toronto Star and a regular member of the panel. The program features news - worthy guests who try to stump a panel of personalities.

Any Influence?

Voting-Day Ban On Drinks Under Attack

VANCOUVER (CP)—Would buying a few people a drink affect the outcome of an election?

The question is posed by representatives of B.C. hotels when asked about the B.C. Liquor Act regulation requiring closure of licensed premises on election days.

DISCUSSION ASKED

The B.C. Hotels Association has asked the Union of B.C. Municipalities to discuss the issue at its next convention.

Vancouver's bars and beer parlors were closed yesterday as voters went to the polls to elect a new city council.

INFLUENCE THEN

Bill Wainwright, hotels association president, says most hotelmen think the law is a hang-over from the days when population was sparse and elections could be influenced by treating people to drinks.

"But those days have faded into history and the law has lost its purpose now. If the reason no longer exists the licensed premises should be allowed to stay open."

NO FORECAST

Attorney-General Bonner said the government will study possible repeal of the law but added he would not like to forecast the result of the study.

Col. Donald McGugan, provincial liquor commissioner, said: "I have no opinion whatsoever on such matters."

Fun Club Head Says Funds Already Spent

VANCOUVER (CP) — Elmo Johnston, president of a fun club primarily for single men and women in Vancouver and Victoria, says the $25,000 collected for the organization so far has been spent.

The registrar of companies has requested the British Columbia cabinet to cancel the registration of Mr. Johnston's organization — called Dolphin Recreation Limited — following an investigation prompted by the Vancouver Better Business Bureau.

The cabinet is expected to announce a ruling within a few days.

In an interview, Mr. Johnston said about $25,000 had been collected by selling $300 subscriptions at $10 down and $10 a month. However, he said, his expenses had also been $25,000 — mostly in salaries and office overhead.

Mr. Johnston, a former cemetery plot salesman, said present members were gambling their money but "if the project goes ahead they will have a membership for a very small fee which will then cost (to future members) $1,000."

The registrar of companies contends Mr. Johnston's company is selling shares while it has no assets.

Mr. Johnston says he is selling memberships in an unincorporated club separate from the company.

University Leaders See Few 'Pink' Cells

TORONTO (CP) — Presidents of Ontario universities express doubt that Communist or "pink" cells exist on most Canadian university campuses.

The accusation was made Tuesday by R. W. Todgham, president of Chrysler Corporation of Canada Limited, in a speech to the Montreal Rotary Club.

Mr. Todgham said there is a danger some students will become "permanent converts to alien ideologies."

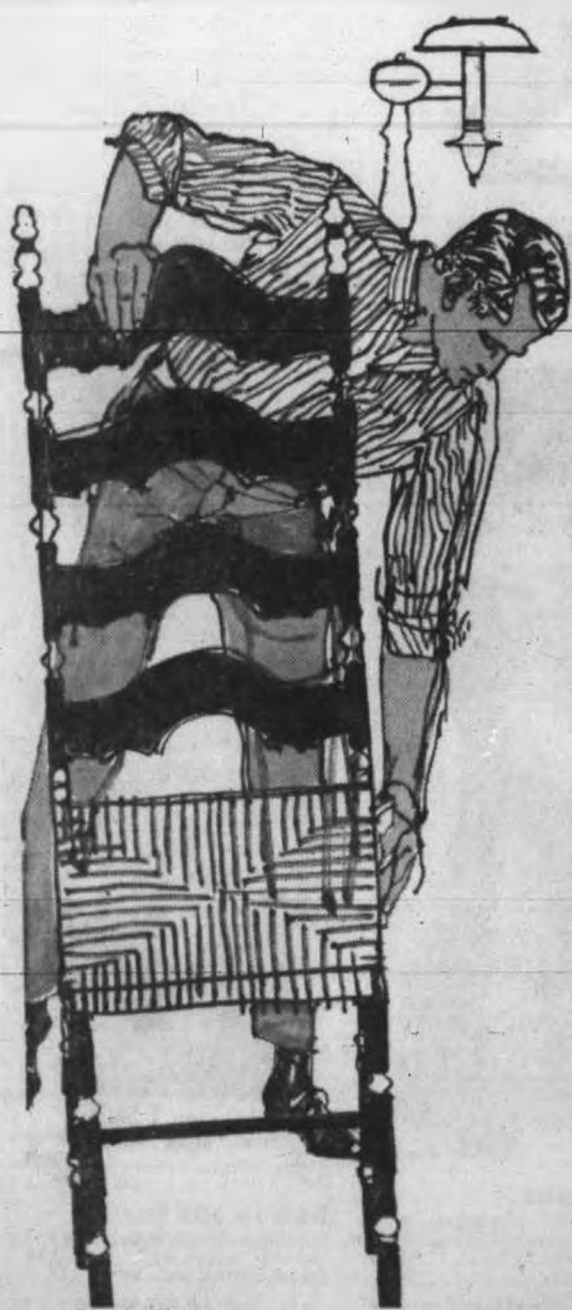

Dr. J. A. Corry, principal of Queen's University in Kingston, said there is less student Communist influence on Canadian campuses today than at any time in history.

Dr. Murray Ross, president of Toronto's York University, said students on his campus are gravely concerned about maintaining democratic principles.

J. G. Hagay, president of the University of Waterloo, said there may be some campuses throughout Canada that have Communist groups, "but we don't have them here."

The only recognized Communist club in Ontario is at the University of Toronto.

Market Hit by Red

TORONTO (UPI) — Soviet Ambassador Amasap Aroutunian charged Tuesday night that the European Common Market "endangers the vital interests of all nations and the cause of world peace itself."

Aroutunian, whose country has been a steady opponent of the European Common Market, told the annual dinner of the Export Study Club. The market threatened the development of the national economy and foreign trade of new countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America. He said it was being used by "the most belligerent forces of the west as an economic basis of the aggressive NATO bloc."

The Soviet envoy said Canadian traders do not appreciate the part played by socialist countries, and the Soviet Union in particular, on world markets.

He said the world socialist market accounted for 13 per cent of the world trade turnover in 1961 compared with eight per cent in 1950.

Aroutunian also charged that Canadian exporters were not dynamic enough to open up markets in the Soviet Union. But he conceded that trade between Canada and Russia has increased in recent years.

Bad-Driver Answer: Color Plate

TORONTO (UPI)—Salvation Army commissioner Wyllie Booth suggested yesterday chronic traffic violators should be publicly identified by specially-colored license plates and barred from expressways.

Booth, who said "our highways must come to be deadly," explained cars bearing these plates could be banned from expressways for a two-year, violation-free period.

Christmas Exams

Pens Are Busy At University

Students at Victoria University are half-way through their first week of Christmas examinations.

Some of the more fortunate senior students have already finished, as they often have to write only one or two examinations.

Most others will not be finished until the middle of next week and some will be writing as late as Dec. 21.

Many who finish their examinations early have been able to find part-time work for the holidays.

The post office and the Liquor Control Board hire a few students every Christmas, and other students find work in department stores and gift shops.

The second term of lectures does not start until Jan. 7, giving students at least two weeks holiday.

The New Antarctica

By RON POULTON

Fourth in a Series

SOUTH POLE, Antarctica
—On Nov. 2, 1902, Captain Robert Scott left Hut Point, a bleak volcanic promontory jutting into the sea within sight of today's McMurdo Station.

Fifty-nine days later, he had covered 380 miles and got nothing but scurvy for his pains.

In 1912 he reached the Pole only to die on the way back to the coast. And now the restless ice is carrying his frozen body out to sea.

Nowadays, American supply planes roar over Hut Point every hour. By the time the sun goes down in March, 250,000 square miles of this ice-blocked continent will have been charted from the air.

Year to Hours

The assault on Antarctica, accelerated every year since 1957, is accomplishing between breakfast and dinner what it took the early explorers a year to do.

In one 24-hour span I covered 3,140 miles in ski-equipped Hercules cargo planes to the South Pole and Byrd stations where men have learned to survive by burrowing into the snows.

The Pole bases 11 men. We saw only three before snow spumed over the huts and the

Navy Deserter Jailed for Year

HALIFAX (CP)—Oliver J. Grenon, 35-year-old former Victoria naval lieutenant, was sentenced Wednesday to one year in prison on a charge of deserting his ship.

Grenon, native of Radville, Sask., and father of four, pleaded not guilty at his court martial which opened Wednesday morning and ended in the afternoon. Subject of a six-month search before he was arrested in Germany last month, Grenon was charged with deserting the destroyer escort Kootenay at Portsmouth, England, last April.

NOT ON STAND
Maximum penalty was five years imprisonment.

Grenon, defended by RCAF Sgt. Ldr. Clive Rippon, a service legal officer, did not take the stand. He was not asked why he failed to return to the ship or where he had been during his absence.

The decision of the five-man court will be reviewed by the district officer commanding and Grenon can appeal to the governor-in-council or the court martial appeal board.

Cmdr. Harry Shorten, Kootenay's commander when she visited Portsmouth, testified he had last seen Grenon on board the ship April 6 in Portsmouth. He said Grenon had been given six days off—four days annual leave and the weekend.

Grenon's leave expired at 7 a.m. April 13 but he failed to return and the ship sailed without him.

The prosecutor, Lt.-Cmdr. Marvin Biall said unless the accused was prevented from returning to the ship by circumstances beyond his control, "it is reasonable to infer he intended to desert."

PENALTY LOST

Addressing the court martial before it retired to deliberate sentence, Sgt. Ldr. Rippon said Grenon had 17 years' service in the navy. He said in the normal course of events Grenon would have retired on pension with a capital value of $60,000-$65,000, all of which was lost when he was released from the navy.

'Touch-Go' in Raging River

By ALBO MERRIMAN

Seattle King County Sheriff Timothy McCullough and his 24-year-old son, Timothy, Jr., battled the raging white water of the San Juan River yesterday to rescue their steelhead fishing partner, Seattle restaurateur Tom Werner.

All three came close to drowning when their pram boat hit willows in the river near Port Renfrew at the second riffle below the 12-mile black suspension bridge.

The pram tipped, took in water, and sank leaving the three steelheaders floundering over their heads in icy water. All were wearing full gear, including hip waders.

The young McCullough grabbed some overhanging willows and hauled himself to shallow water.

Sheriff McCullough stayed with Werner, swam with the current and touched bottom.

But Werner, who suffers from severe arthritis, slipped from McCullough's grip and was swept downstream and washed against and partly under a log where he was held by the raging current at the side of the river.

The pram came bobbing downstream, crashed against Werner and pinned him to the log.

The two McCulloughs rushed to his aid and after several anxious minutes were able to free him from the force of the strong current.

The pram washed away, steelhead bobbers and lures floated down the river, $270 worth of tackle, including a $30 rod Werner was trying out for the first time, was lost in the river.

They were left stranded along the bank of the San Juan River, a mile or so from the nearest logging road and had to crash their way through bush and forest to reach the road. Four times they had to wade across the swollen river.

"It was touch and go," recalled Werner as he rested at Frank Elliott's home at Port Renfrew last night.

He had hooked into, but had lost two steelhead, before the mishap.

Today they will make a search for their boat and fishing tackle.

By TERRY HAMMOND

Premier Bennett today stands between the threatening arms of a political pincers movement which represents the greatest threat to his administration since Social Credit shot to power in 1952.

On his left flank the NDP army of socialism girds for battle, its numbers swelling daily from the ranks of a B.C. labor movement in ministerial turmoil.

scattered followers under the banner of new leadership.

Closest to Socialism

Never in history has British Columbia appeared so close to moving into the socialist camp as it does now.

There is a new spring in the step of NDP Leader Robert Strachan as he strides the legislative corridors. Gone is the manner of a leader who suspects he may be tilting at windmills.

FEWER MINNES

Mr. Strachan looks and acts today like a man destined to be the next premier or to come so close the whole province will tremble with the palpitations of the free enterprise community.

No longer does he swing and fire on every bird to flush from the government bush. He fires less often. He misses less often, too.

If he had any secret misgivings over his statement that the NDP will form the next B.C. government they were dispelled with the entry of Davis Fulton onto the provincial Tory scene.

NOT NEEDED?
Before Mr. Fulton's move Mr. Strachan's problem was to get more NDP votes at the next election. He was satisfied, largely on the basis of the party's B.C. showing in last June's federal election, that they were coming his way.

Today he may not need them.

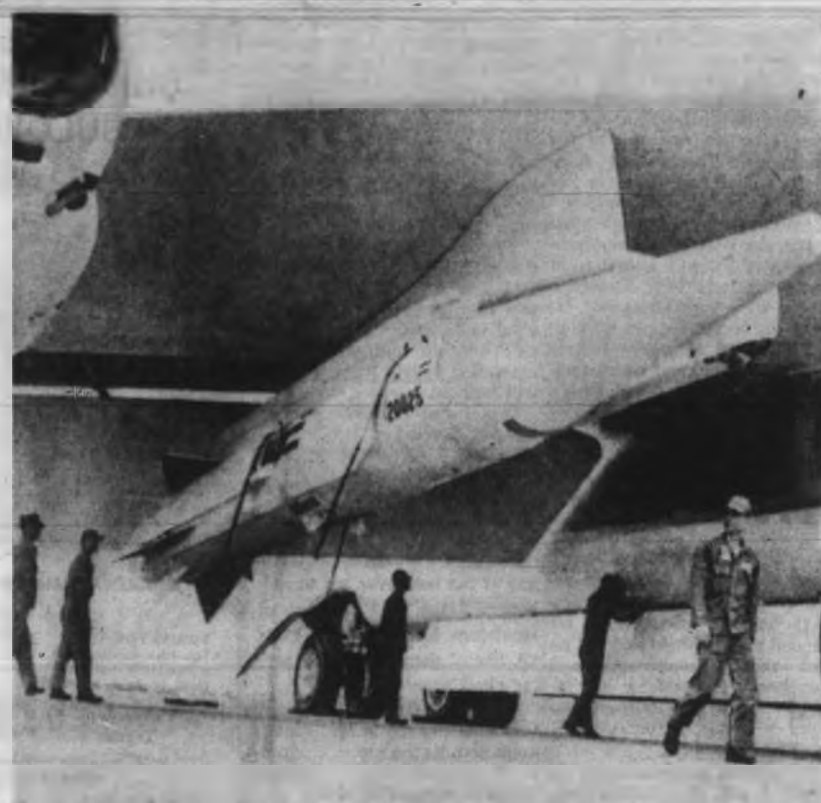

By sapping the strength of Social Credit through an appeal for Tory defectors to return to the fold, Mr. Fulton may hand the balance of power to the NDP on a silver platter.

HOW PROLIFIC?

Onto the platter the NDP will be expected to add the fruits of labor's recent marriage to socialism.

Just how prolific this union will be has been a matter of much conjecture, and not until recent weeks has there been

Controversial Skybolt missile tucked under bomber's wing.

Skybolt Left in Air

WASHINGTON (AP)—Final decision on the Skybolt project, which has strained the American-British alliance, won't be made until after President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan meet next week.

Peacemaker

Visits to New Delhi and Peking to urge negotiation of Sino-Indian warfare are planned by Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi of India. Meanwhile, India's Nehru said India cannot guarantee the cease-fire will continue.

Talks between U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara and British Foreign Minister Thorneycroft have bogged down.

DECISION WAITS

President Kennedy said Wednesday no final decision would be made on the possible U.S. scrapping of the Skybolt program until the current conference with the British and the project cost reappraisal are completed.

Kennedy said the U.S. government recognizes that Britain has an important stake in the Skybolt. However, he said, it must be decided whether the missile is worth the estimated cost—$2,500,000,000 on top of the $300,000,000 already spent.

COMPROMISE

It is believed Kennedy and Macmillan now will try to reach a compromise agreement at their Bahamas meeting Dec. 19 and 20.

The defence chiefs of the two nations had lengthy talks in London Tuesday. McNamara left for Paris Wednesday to attend the NATO ministerial meeting.

Macmillan first concluded the Skybolt agreement with President Eisenhower nearly three years ago. The Americans undertook to develop the missile and Britain undertook to buy it.

Britain needs the Skybolt to prolong the life of its manned-bomber force. Tucked under the wings of a bomber, the rocket is designed to be fired while still 1,100 miles from target.

Without it, Britain will have no other means of delivering nuclear weapons in the mid-1980s when anti-aircraft defences would make it virtually impossible for planes to drop their bombs over the target area.

British defence experts see Skybolt's initial flight failures as mere teething troubles which can be overcome.

'Hot Phone' Proposed

GENEVA (UPI)—The United States Thursday suggested a "hot telephone" link between President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev to help reduce the risk of thermonuclear war starting by accident or miscalculation.

There was no immediate reaction from the Soviets.

Nikita Hands China Rebuke, Warning

From AP, UPI
MOSCOW—Premier Khrushchev sharply rebuked Communist China Wednesday for urging war with the U.S. over Cuba and warned Peking the U.S. is a "paper tiger" with no clear teeth.

Rebel Leader Flies Self In

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—The former chief of the Argentine Air Force, who set up a rebel command in central Argentina surrendered Wednesday to the government and headed here in his own airplane to be arrested.

The presidential press office said Brig. Cayo Antonio Abina was flying to Buenos Aires.

In a two-hour, 40-minute address to the Supreme Soviet parliament broadcast to the nation, he warned the Cuban crisis was not over yet and urged U.S. to live up to a no-invasion pledge on Cuba.

"The Soviet government is convinced it is not in the interest of peace to tarry with the completion of the Caribbean crisis, and we hope the government of the United States understands this too," he said.

Khrushchev listed settlement of the German issue as the No. 2 problem. He said Russia is determined to conclude a German peace treaty.

Meanwhile, in Washington, U.S. sources estimated between 2,000 and 3,000 Cuban troops have left Cuba in the last few weeks and 9,000 to 15,000 are still there.

Rathie Mayor In Vancouver

Sunday Movies Approved

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canada's third largest city seems sure to have Sunday movies, plays, concerts and operas after 1:30 p.m. and in the evenings.

Voters yesterday approved a plebiscite for Sunday entertainment and also elected as their new mayor William Rathie, 48, a hard-headed businessman and former alderman.

With about one-third of the polls reported, the vote for Sunday entertainment was 8,412 in favor and 3,886 against, a majority of more than two to one.

A bylaw to expand the aquarium in Stanley Park seemed to be headed for victory in early balloting but voters were turning down by-laws to spend more than $5,000,000 to turn parts of two golf courses into parkland.

The mayor-elect promised "substantial streamlining" in city hall and, immediately after his inauguration, to "step up to the front door of city hall and shake hands with all the civic employees."

Picking up majority blocs of votes in most parts of the city, he surged past Ald. Halford Wilson soon after the start of counting, and with 63 of 97 polls reporting had 32,036 votes to Wilson's 26,630.

Kennedy Firm On Cuba

(From AP and UPI)

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy said Wednesday the United States is taking every step necessary to see that offensive Soviet weapons are not brought back to Cuba.

During a press conference, the president said the U.S. is not retreating from its position that on-the-spot inspection in Cuba would have to be made before any formal "no-invasion" pledge could be

HOPES FOR SUCCESS
He said he hoped current negotiations with the Russians on Cuban issues would be successful.

Kennedy was questioned on the position reportedly taken by United Nations ambassador Adlai Stevenson in U.S. National Security Council deliberations on Cuba.

DECISION PRESIDENT'S
Kennedy said he would not attempt to describe in any way the position members of the council took. The decision in any case is the president's, he added, the council is merely advisory.

He said he does not think there is much advantage to press speculation about the position members took during the Cuban crisis. He said a consensus finally was reached. His decision was made, and all members supported it.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Thousands of men tended smudge pots and wind-machines across the central Florida orange belt Wednesday as freezing temperatures presented citrus growers with the greatest threat since 1957.

Cave-In Kills 34

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Thirty-four Negro miners were killed and 20 injured in a huge earth cave-in that swallowed a crushing plant Wednesday at the world's richest gold mine, West Driefontein, 35 miles west of here. The hole filled swiftly with water from a burst main.

Miners who, at risk to themselves, saved others who had fallen into the pit.

Summer Fair Christmas Boon

A summer-time "Fun Fair" collecting and selling pop bottles.

"After a lot of consideration, we decided we didn't want the money sitting around any longer, and decided the 500 Fund was the best place for it," he said.

They said, for some unexplained reason, that they weren't too happy with the "Athletic Association" name, nor did they want to say more than their "Fun Fair" included a "Chamber of Horrors" but they were very happy to have the money going to help the 500 Victoria families that will receive a cheque this Christmas from the fund.

Major auctioneer of Maynard and Sons Auctioneers, 741-3 Johnson becomes a big part of the 500 fund for one evening Friday.

Huge piles of toys—some new, some slightly worn—in infinite variety, will be auctioned starting at 7:30 p.m. to bring Christmas cheer to the needy families helped by the fund.

Maynard's have donated the premises, their staff and a professional auctioneer.

Most of the toys have been donated outright and many more will possibly be brought to the auction rooms before the big night begins.

Money received from all toys given outright goes direct to the 500 Fund. Citizens can also bring toys for sale and keep the proceeds, but Maynard's will donate their auctioneer's commission to the fund.

The auction is a big chance to buy Christmas toys at savings... and also help the 500 Victoria families that need help most at the happy season of the year.

Army Tests Easier to Watch Than to Do

Reporter Don Gain tries first exercise in army combat proficiency test at Work Point. A misstep in the dodge-run-jump would land him in a muddy ditch.—(Robin Clarke)

Leopard crawl is easy when there's no live ammunition whizzing over your head. "Keep your stomach and heels down," reporter Gain was cautioned.

This looked simple when somebody else did it. But, when 40 pounds of rifle, steel helmet and webbing was added to Don Gain's own weight, gravity set in.

Pay Order Sequel:

Smaller Hotels In Danger

DUNCAN — Small operators in the hotel and catering industry may suffer "undue hardship" as a result of a recent B.C. minimum wage order, tourism committee chairman D. M. Hurley told the local Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

He hoped some amendments will be made to the order and the chamber decided to pass on this hope to the B.C. Chamber.

Mr. Hurley said the Board of Industrial Relations order raising the minimum wage to $1 an hour Jan. 1 "will create an undue hardship to small operators in certain sections of this industry, particularly in small areas and unorganized districts."

MIGHT CURTAIL

He felt larger establishments with bigger investments, a high standard of service and fully-qualified staffs could stand the increase but "small operators will suffer and might have to curtail their services."

Mr. Hurley also urged an extension of the training period for beginners. The new pay scale allows only three months for training and it is impossible to become skillful in such a short time, he said.

PHONE DIRECTORY

The directors decided to ask the B.C. Telephone Co. for an all-Island phone directory, except for Victoria. They felt the present system of several small directories is unsatisfactory, particularly in view of the 40 per cent revenue from long distance calls.

Decision on the big City of Duncan sign on the highway at the southern approach was that downtown retail merchants should pay for its renovation even though none has come forward yet with a plan.

OPINIONS ASKED

The original sign organizers, chamber members from the defunct retail division, will be asked for opinions. Directors had planned to take down the sign but Maple Bay residents have indicated interest in taking it over to advertise their area.

The chamber also:

● Learned from director Will Dobson that city plans to acquire Indian land for road construction south of Trunk Road, to encourage light industry, likely will not be completed for a year.

● Named Bert Dodd, Gordon Sutherland and Cliff Pascoe to a committee to organize the annual meeting here next March of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island.

Tenders Taken, Rejected

CAMPBELL RIVER — Village commissioners have accepted the low tender for one major municipal project but rejected the one tender for another.

L. and H. Logging's low bid of $17,775 was accepted for the job of clearing for an extension to the municipal airport. Other tenders ranged up to $23,250.

LESS IN BUDGET

Only bid was $11,500 for modernizing office staff quarters in the present municipal hall, the 48-year-old former Lourdes Hospital. It was rejected since commissioners had set only $5,000 in the budget for the job.

Commissioners decided to set the $5,000 aside for construction of a new municipal hall.

DANGEROUS BEND

Courtenay city council sent a letter supporting the local commission's request to the provincial highways department for elimination of the dangerous S bend at Oyster River, the scene of many fatal accidents.

Commissioner A. D. Corker reported steadily increasing use of the airport, with 354 passengers embarked in November compared to 299 in the same month last year.

HELP TO CHILDREN

Approval was given by the commission to construction of sidewalks on Elm Street from the highway to Tenth Avenue, an advantage to children at Elm Street Elementary School, and on the south side of 13th from the highway to the bus depot.

Century Mark 'Surprises' City Woman

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

A Victoria great-grandmother of 27 children, who was a Saskatchewan ranch wife from 1898 to some 10 years ago, celebrates her 100th birthday today.

Mrs. Susannah Perrin, who lives with her daughter, Mrs. Irene G. Williams at 3674 Ophir, Saanich, last night looked back on a life that took her from Kent, England, to London, Halifax, South Dakota, Maple Creek, Sask., and Victoria.

"I've been well treated wherever I've gone," she said. "I've enjoyed my life."

But she looked back with nostalgic delight on her youth in Kent, London, the Isle of Wight and North Wales.

SO QUICKLY: She seemed surprised to have reached the century mark so quickly. "I knew I was getting on."

Mrs. Perrin was born Susannah Chamberlin, the daughter of an English navy officer. Her mother lived to 94 and her maternal grandmother passed 100.

TO HALIFAX: After studying at the Home and Colonial College in London for two years, Miss Chamberlin spent some years as a teacher, rising to an administrative post in a north London girls' school.

At about 30 she came to Halifax where she visited a married sister for six months. Then she continued to South Dakota where her fiancé, an English fruitgrower's son and a sweetheart of long standing, had prepared a place for her. They married and farmed in South Dakota for six years. She bore three of her four children there.

The pioneer couple moved to Maple Creek, Sask., in 1898 and Mr. Perrin ranched. It was mostly there Mrs. Perrin raised and educated her children.

SON ON FARM

Mrs. Perrin left the family farm at Maple Creek for Victoria about 10 years ago. Her husband died about 12 years ago. One son, Roy, still lives at the farm. Another, Len, is in Edmonton. A daughter has died.

Of 18 grandchildren, 14 survive throughout the Canadian and U.S. west. Two of Mrs. Williams's children live in Greater Victoria: Mrs. N. H. Latimer of 3038 Oakdowne and W. G. Williams of the Cordova Bay area.

Mrs. Perrin, who still plays the piano, said: "It is always good to have children." A visiting four-year-old great-granddaughter was playing on the floor. "Are you married?" she asked the reporter. "No?" she chuckled. "Then you wouldn't know much about it."

Three generations apart, Mrs. Susannah Perrin, 3674 Ophir, who is 100 years old today, and one of her 27 great-grandchildren, Diane Latimer, 4, of 3038 Oakdowne, sit together.—(Bud Kinsman)

Liquor Theft

Plane Seeks Truck

LAKE COWICHAN — An RCMP aircraft was used yesterday in an attempt to spot a stolen truck believed used by burglars who made off with more than $500 worth of liquor from the liquor store Sunday.

Loss of the liquor — seven cases of spirits and 24 cases of beer — was only discovered through a full-scale audit of the store's stocks. Total value was $531.

The search for the men involved and the truck they used is continuing. The truck is believed to be one stolen from a Duncan lumber store recently.

The burglars attempted to make off with the liquor store safe, containing some $4,000 at the same time.

But the safe fell from the truck on the road to Honey-moon Bay and it was abandoned.

The burglars are believed to be the same persons who broke into the liquor store a week before and tried unsuccessfully to blast the safe open.

Crash Victim Improving

Royal Jubilee Hospital last night reported "slight improvement" in the condition of a Victoria man who has been unconscious since a weekend car accident at Qualicum.

He is Allan G. Mitchell, 23, of 2864 Wyndhurst, who was a passenger in a sports car driven by David E. Briggs, 21, of 2645 Anscomb. The driver's condition is "fairly good."

Hillcrest Issue Over Free Bus Returns

DUNCAN — The long Hillcrest Lumber Co. bus dispute ended yesterday when the company decided to resume full free bus service for IWA member-loggers to Mesachie Lake from both Duncan and Lake Cowichan.

The 70 loggers had been idle since last Jan. 2 after the company withdrew the service as an economy measure. The Lake Cowichan run was reinstated in June in a temporary settlement.

Company director Peter Stone said the new move "can hardly be called a settlement but we have no alternative," while an IWA official said the men still have to give their consent.

'Dark of Night' Postal Move Starts Storm

KELSEY BAY — A storm has burst upon this north Island community of 400 over the moving of the post office "in the dark of night."

The post office, since 1924 situated on the wharf of the bay, was moved Friday a mile down the road to a logging camp where most of the populace live.

PROBE WANTED

But the residents around the wharf are demanding it be moved right back again.

A. B. Bendickson, owner of a tree farm on nearby Hardwicke Island, said: "They did it in the dark of night and what we'd like now is a full investigation into the move and, especially, we'd like to know who is behind it."

"We know secretive petitions were sent around last year asking for the move and we have an idea who sent them. Mainly, we'd like our post office back. It's not much of a building but it's darned important to us."

Deadly Slide Survived By Logger

PORT ALBERNI — Chokerman Mike Montagna, about 23, escaped death Tuesday when he slipped over the edge of a rock bluff, then slid and rolled down a 100-foot slope at the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Sproat Lake division.

Montagna suffered nose and wrist fractures and facial abrasions. Accident occurred after he left the job momentarily to go for a drink of water.

Post Office Blackout Puzzle for Customer

GUESS YOUR WEIGHT?

Friend of ours is curious as to why the parcel scales in the post office are blacked out so the customer can't see what the scales register. Store scales can be read from both sides. The curiosity came about when the man mailed two parcels — identical in every respect except that one went out a week later. One cost $1.65 in postage — the other $1.15.

OUR GAIL: SAL: Jill Arlett

who writes the Shopping with Sally feature published in the Colonist social pages Fridays found out about the power of the press the hard way. Recently she found some attractive Christmas cards, so mentioned them in the column. Later, a few days later, she realized she needed some Christmas cards, herself, so she went down to the store. The clerk, respectfully informed her they were all gone since that girl put it in the Colonist.

CLIP JOINTS: Apart from

lack of funds, no man will have an excuse for looking shaggy over Christmas. In the week preceding Christmas barber shops are allowed to stay open on their normal closing day so city stores will be open all day Wednesday, Dec. 19, and stores in Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt will be open all day Monday, Dec. 24.

OLD HAT: We hear his trip

to New York to tape two shows for the Ted Mack amateur hour is old hat to veteran Victoria entertainer Reg Stoffer, 1677 Christmas — he was a contestant on the original show, Mat. Bowes' Amateur Hour, on radio 25 years ago.

Reg's singing saw has been a welcome feature of Island shows for years.

CLIFFHANGER: Intriguing

sight along Dallas Road, near Beacon Hill Park, yesterday morning must have left spectators up in the air — city workmen using a ladder to retrieve a hammer dangling from a tree at the end of a long, long string. One of the people who watched this asked us what it was all about so we passed the buck to parks foreman Cliff Bate. Seems the tree had a "hanger" — a dangerously weak branch — and the easiest way to correct this is to pull the branch off with a rope. If the tree is hard to climb then the easiest way to get the rope over the top is to tie a heavy object to a long string, toss the object over the branch, tie a rope to the other end of the string and then pull the rope over. This time the heavy object — the hammer — got caught.

Crackdown Ahead

City Police Chief John Blackstock is planning a general crackdown on drivers over the Christmas period with all the thoroughness of a military operation.

Traffic squads will set up checkpoints throughout Victoria to catch impaired drivers and all police have been instructed to seek out driving violations.

Particular attention will be paid to speeding drivers ignoring stop signs or red lights, he said. Times, dates and locations of the checkpoints to catch drunk drivers are top secret.

Drinkers Face Dragnet

"Any driver who has been drinking should call a cab, or even city police — we'll do our best to get him home," he said.

"There will be no action taken against any driver who asks for police aid in reaching home, but we'll crack down hard if he tries to drive himself."

"A cab home from a party will cost only a dollar or so and it's cheaper in the long run — a conviction for drunken driving can mean a fine of up to $250 or jail, cancellation of the driver's licence, and increased insurance rates. Let's have safe Christmas on the road this year."

High Tide Saves Air Force Crew

PARKSVILLE—An RCAP Otter aircraft from 442 Squadron at Vancouver was forced into an ocean landing when it developed engine trouble Wednesday.

FO Harold Harris and a crew of two escaped unhurt onto a nearby beach. Witnesses said they believed the aircraft would have been lost had the tide been out.

Building Design

Nanaimo Architect Victor in Test Case

VANCOUVER—As a private citizen has the right to present his own case in a court of law, so may a man design his own building, Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton has ruled in B.C. Supreme Court.

In what was considered a test case, the justice dismissed the Architectural Institute of B.C.'s application for an injunction to prevent Lionel Francour of Nanaimo from practicing as an architect.

SUITE RENTED

The institute claimed Francour built four apartment blocks in and around Nanaimo on property he owned, each worth more than $25,000. It claimed Francour designed, drew the plans, obtained permits and supervised the blocks' construction. Suites were rented to the public.

It also said Francour is not registered with the B.C. Architectural Institute and does not hold a licence under the Architectural Professions Act.

OTHER THAN

The act says an architect is a person who is engaged in the planning and supervision of the erecting and enlargement or alteration of buildings for persons other than himself.

The court was asked to interpret the words "for other than himself." Mr. Justice Wootton held Francour was planning for himself.

DUNCAN—Local residents James MacLaughlin and Josef Galea yesterday were given 12-month Okalla prison farm sentences for breaking, entering and theft at Evans Motors. Magistrate D. K. McAdam told MacLaughlin he will recommend a transfer to the correctional institute for him. "In your case," Magistrate McAdam told Galea, "a recommendation would be hopeless."

PORT ALBERNI—An arbitration board judging the case of Jarritt Play, sawmill worker and IWA member, has ruled that, if the boss says work or go home, a worker can go home with a clear conscience. Play received the choice from his foreman Aug. 2 but was fired next day because he decided to go home. The board said Play neither quit nor did anything to justify being fired so Play will claim $1,000 in back pay.

COURTENAY—School trustees have decided to hold a survey on the need for a regional college in the north island area and will ask Campbell River school board if they wish to join.

Move follows a recent meeting of UBC president Dr. John MacDonald and Island school trustees at Nanaimo in which, it was claimed, Nanaimo "overwhelmed" the meeting with figures showing that city as the logical site for such a college.

DUNCAN—With the motto "Make your Christmas gift to the community a 'pint of blood,'" organizers of the blood clinic here tomorrow hope to reach an objective of 400 pints. Clinic hours in the United Church hall are 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Co-ordinator John Sanders hoped service clubs and other organizations will turn out in full force to compete for a new Soroptimist trophy for the largest per-capita donation.

PORT ALBERNI—Ald. Les Hammer congratulated clerk-controller Dennis Thain on disposing of a large issue of local improvement debentures in "over the counter" sales here, but Mayor Loran Jordan declared it is the purchasers who should be congratulated.

He said he had not thought a market would be found here for the $97,000 issue, largest amount yet in the annual local improvement bond sale. He regarded the fact the bonds had been sold so quickly as an indication of faith in administration of civic affairs.

NANAIMO—Cash bonuses, safety buttons and certificates for safe driving have been presented to Vancouver Island Coach Lines bus drivers by the company. The practice was started more than 28 years ago.

Lee Cooper of Nanaimo, who has 23 years safe driving to his credit, was among the top winners. Awards recognizing from one to 20 years safe driving were given to Nanaimo drivers R. H. Clark, D. L. Stewart, T. W. Collins, P. Falk, W. Lackman, T. A. Robertson, A. H. Brown and R. S. Preston.

PORT ALBERNI—Rites will be held in Percy funeral home in Courtenay at 2 p.m. today for Joseph Taylor, who died in West Coast General Hospital. Mr. Taylor had lived at the home of a daughter.

Around The Island

Mrs. Walter Sommerville, born in Yorkshire 74 years ago, was a retired coal miner.

COURTENAY—Robert Moffat of Courtenay has been fined $15 in magistrate's court for wilfully injuring a neighbor's $125 Pekingese. Police said the dog, owned by Mrs. Fred Gavel, a Pekingese breeder, was injured permanently for breeding purposes when beaten with a stick and thrown 25 feet out of Moffat's yard.

Vitamin Ban Urged

NANAIMO—The local branch of the Consumers' League has been asked to approach Ottawa with a request that addition of any vitamin to foods and milk products be banned by law, except for Vitamin C in fruit juices.

Request followed a speech by University Women's Club member Phyllis Hood on the dangers of addition of Vitamin D to foods.

SUGGESTION GIVEN—She suggested it should be removed from all foods with the exception of enriched flour and the iodization of salt, and believed it should only be given in pill or liquid form and on doctor's recommendation.

Miss Hood said Vitamin D is essential to health but excessive doses of the vitamin approach the toxic level.

Pensioners Enjoy Banquet

NANAIMO—Mayor Pete Maffeo, master of ceremonies at the old age pensioners' banquet in the Legion Hall, paid tribute to the good work done by the old age pensioners' organization under the strong guidance of Joe Sutton, president.

Women of the Moose prepared the banquet, which was enjoyed by more than 500 guests. Donations from city firms and private individuals, added to the organization's funds, met all the cost.

Pupils of Madge Grey dancing school and Sid Moore, Al Moore, Al Addison, Gladys Carrol and Bill Shorthouse were part of the entertainment. Dancing was originally planned after dinner, but it was decided there was not enough space due to the large attendance.

Missile Scores At Long Range

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Army's Nike Zeus missile killer Wednesday scored its second successful intercept of a target warhead launched by an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile over the Pacific.

The Nike Zeus, fired from the mid-Pacific Kwajalein Island, came within kill range of the target warhead which had been fired from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California.

Ontario Girl May Lose Feet

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—A nude 13-year-old Waterloo girl found on a Waterloo Township road late Tuesday night is in danger of losing both feet because of severe frostbite.

The child was found crawling on her hands and knees in near zero temperatures. Police have charged a 20-year-old Waterloo youth with assault causing bodily harm.

One Thief Hopeless, Says Court

NANAIMO—Robert George Patterson and Robert Templeton Lawson were jailed for the theft of a safe from a school. Patterson got two years, Lawson two years less a day definite and two years less a day indefinite.

ALBERNI—Funeral will be held in Kingdom Hall at 2 p.m. Friday for Gustav Melvin Rudd, who died in West Coast General Hospital at the age of 72. Mr. Rudd, born in North Dakota, was a retired farmer. He came to this district seven years ago and made his home at 1002 Shaughnessy Road.

NANAIMO—An eight-foot dinghy was stolen Monday night from its mooring at Western Marine Enterprises. A break-in at Mayo Mill the same night netted thieves a power saw and some tools. The power saw was recovered later and a juvenile has been charged with the theft.

DUNCAN—Game conservation officer Jimmie Dewar said "it was on behalf of the dogs, including the five killed while doing their duty," when he accepted a 25-year continuous service certificate from Premier Bennett in Victoria Tuesday. Born in Banackburn, Scotland, Mr. Dewar joined the provincial game department Nov. 1, 1935. Since that time, his dogs have killed 14 wolves and many cougars.

VANCOUVER—Maynard Chase, 22, injured last Friday in a fall from the roof of the Port Alberni skating-curling rink construction project, was reported in fair condition in Vancouver General Hospital yesterday.

CAMPBELL RIVER—James McCabe has been sentenced by Magistrate P. E. Lewis to 14 days in jail for impaired driving. It was his second such offence.

NANAIMO—Federal Works Minister Fulton will participate in a seminar-workshop here of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews Jan. 12. More than 400 persons are expected to attend.

PORT ALBERNI—The B.C. Toll Authority has assured city council action is being considered to improve conditions for handicapped people on the Departure Bay-Horseshoe Bay ferry service. The authority noted a similar problem existed on the Victoria run and action was taken to correct it. Council had endorsed an IWA request for an elevator-equipped vessel.

NANAIMO—Members of the Cedar Women's Institute will donate money to the Save the Children milk fund this Christmas instead of exchanging gifts.

PORT ALBERNI—Three members were raised to the highest degree at a special session of the local Buffalo Lodge, oldest RAOB lodge in the province.

Carl Burnip, Percy Eames and Ed Merwin received their degrees in a ceremony attended by oldtimers of the organization and visiting members from Vancouver, Victoria and Nanaimo. Among those attending was Bill Burnip, a member of the order for 55 years. Mr. Burnip, 82, is still an active RAOB member, now living in Nanaimo.

LEMON HART RUMS
ARE IMPORTED

Bananas are not native to Canada... and neither are rums. Lemon Hart, for example, is produced under the most wonderful conditions in The Caribbean. But for Lemon Hart, even that is not enough: It's shipped to London where it rests quietly in underground vaults where neither the temperature nor the humidity varies more than a degree or two year in year out. Then, meticulously blended and bottled it's finally shipped to Canada... smooth, mellow, delicious... a perfect product of that small area of the world that is famous for distinguished rum.

People who pay to shop

Most retailers, we suspect, would shudder at the idea of charging customers an admission fee to shop in their stores.

Yet, we do it regularly. Readers buy this paper for the news and features, but they also buy it to see your advertising. They want to know what you are selling, what your prices are, and compare this with what another merchant is advertising.

Readers are shoppers, and people who pay to shop, shop to buy.

Your advertising reaches them as an invited guest. They study it at their leisure, and they will respond if what you have to say interests them.

Who measures this paying audience?

As members of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, we submit our circulation records to regular inspection by traveling ABC auditors. This is an organization of nearly 4,000 advertisers, advertising agencies, and publishers, whose sole purpose is to give accurate and factual circulation reports.

ABC measures our circulation audience, in accordance with the highest industry standards.

Its reports tell how many shoppers buy our paper, where they buy it, what they pay, and many other facts to help you know our paying audience.

Total of Jobless Climbs By 59,000 in Month

OTTAWA (CP)—A further rise in Canadian unemployment, up 59,000 from mid-October to 342,000 at mid-November, was reported Wednesday in a joint statement by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the labor department.

Rusk and de Gaulle Hold 'Cordial' Talk

PARIS (Reuters)—U.S. State Secretary Rusk held a "very friendly and cordial" hour-long meeting with French President de Gaulle Wednesday, the eve of a NATO ministerial council session.

An American spokesman said Rusk brought de Gaulle up to date on the Cuban situation during a "general discussion of East-West matters" at the Elysee Palace.

Another American source said de Gaulle expressed satisfaction with the American handling of the Cuban crisis during the "very friendly and cordial" meeting.

Rusk was joined here by U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara who flew from London after talks on the future of the controversial U.S. Skybolt missile with Defence Minister Thorneycroft of Britain.

The U.S. apparently wants to scrap the missile but Britain objects on grounds the British nuclear force is built around the vehicle, designed to be carried by plane and launched 1,100 miles from target.

jobs total was 7,000 less than the 349,000 unemployed in November, 1961.

The unemployment rate advanced to 5.2 per cent of the labor force compared with 4.3 per cent a month earlier. The rate was 5.4 per cent a year earlier and 6.6 per cent two years earlier.

Total employment declined by 56,000 from mid-October to 6,270,000, a movement which the report said was "considerably less than the usual drop in employment at this time of year." Almost all of the decline was in farm employment.

There were 115,000 more people with jobs than a year earlier, but in the 12 months the labor force had risen by 108,000.

Injury Boost Seen

VANCOUVER (CP)—The International Woodworkers of America said Wednesday an amendment approved by the board of industrial relations "could kill and maim more loggers than any other circumstance in the last 20 years."

The union said it was notified Monday by the board that the Hours of Work Act has been amended to extend a list of exceptions calling for an eight-hour day or 44-hour week.

"This year has already seen a production speed-up accompanied by more logging fatalities than in any other year since 1947," Bob Ross, IWA regional safety director, said in a statement.

The New Antarctica

214 Days In Ice

By RON POULTON
Fourth in a Series

SOUTH POLE, Antarctica—On Nov. 2, 1902, Captain Robert Scott left Hut Point, a bleak volcanic promontory jutting into the sea within sight of today's McMurdo Station.

Fifty-nine days later, he had covered 380 miles and got nothing but scurvy for his pains.

In 1912 he reached the Pole only to die on the way back to the coast. And now the real sea ice is carrying his frozen body out to sea.

Nowadays, American supply planes roar over Hut Point every hour. By the time the sun goes down in March, 230,000 square miles of this ice-blocked continent will have been charted from the air.

Year to Hours

The assault on Antarctica, accelerated every year since 1957, is accomplishing between breakfast and dinner what it took the early explorers a year to do.

In one 24-hour span it covered 3,190 miles in a ski-equipped Hercules cargo plane to the South Pole and Byrd stations where men have learned to survive by burrowing into the snows.

The Pole bases 41 men. We saw only three before snow spumed over the huts and the

Navy Deserter Jailed for Year

HALIFAX (CP)—Oliver J. Grenon, 35-year-old former Victoria naval lieutenant, was sentenced Wednesday to one year in prison on a charge of deserting his ship.

Grenon, native of St. John's, Nfld., and father of four, pleaded not guilty at his court martial which opened Wednesday morning and ended in the afternoon. Subject of a six-month search before he was arrested in Germany last month, Grenon was charged with deserting the destroyer escort Kootenay at Portsmouth, England, last April.

NOT ON STAND

Maximum penalty was five years imprisonment.

Grenon, defended by RCAF Sgt. Ldr. Clive Rippen, a service legal officer, did not take the stand. He was not asked why he failed to return to the ship or where he had been during his absence.

The decision of the five-man court will be reviewed by the district officer commanding and Grenon can appeal to the governor-in-council or the court martial appeal board.

Cmdr. Harry Shorten, Kootenay's commander when she visited Portsmouth, testified he had last seen Grenon on board the ship April 6 in Portsmouth. He said Grenon had been given six days off—four days annual leave and the weekend.

Grenon's leave expired at 7 a.m. April 12 but he failed to return and the ship sailed without him.

The prosecutor, Lt. Cmdr. Marvin Bland, said unless the accused was prevented from returning to the ship by circumstances beyond his control, "it is reasonable to infer he intended to desert."

PENALTY LOST

Addressing the court martial before it retired to deliberate sentence, Sgt. Ldr. Rippen said Grenon had 17 years' service in the navy. He said in the normal course of events Grenon would have retired on pension with a capital value of $60,000-$65,000, all of which was lost when he was released from the navy.

Political Pincers

By TERRY HAMMOND

Premier Bennett today stands between the threatening arms of a political pincers movement which represents the greatest threat to his administration since Social Credit shot to power in 1952.

On his left flank the NDP army of socialism girds for battle, its numbers swelling daily from the ranks of a B.C. labor movement in similar turmoil.

To the right the captains of B.C. Conservatism muster their scattered followers under the banner of new leadership.

The bitter loss of Social Credit are closing in with an unprecedented intensity calculated to test the premier's canny political abilities to the breaking point and beyond.

Closest to Socialism

Never in history has British Columbia appeared so close to moving into the socialist camp as it does now.

There is a new spring in the step of NDP Leader Robert Strachan as he strides the legislative corridors. Gone is the manner of a leader who suspects he may be tilting at windmills.

FEWER MISSES

Mr. Strachan looks and acts today like a man destined to be the next premier or to come so close the whole province will tremble with the palpitations of the free enterprise community.

No longer does he swing and fire on every bird to flush from the government bush. He fires less often. He misses less often, too.

If he had any secret misgivings over his statement that the NDP will form the next B.C. government they were dispelled with the entry of David Fulton onto the provincial Tory scene.

NOT NEEDED?

Before Mr. Fulton's move Mr. Strachan's problem was to get more NDP votes at the next election. He was satisfied, largely on the basis of the party's B.C. showing in last June's federal election, that they were coming his way.

Today he may not need them.

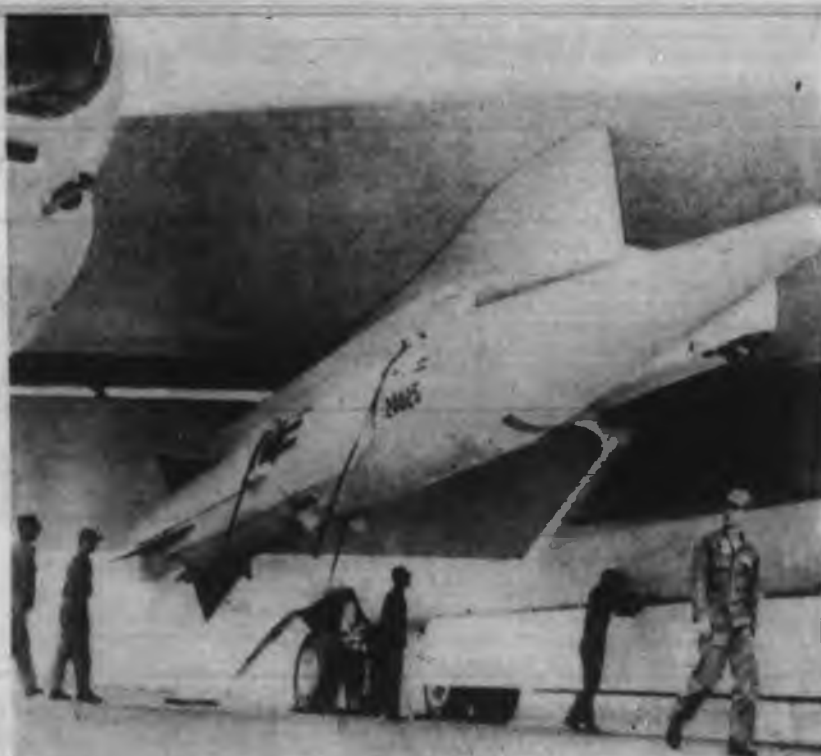

By sapping the strength of Social Credit through an appeal for Tory defectors to return to the fold, Mr. Fulton may hand the balance of power to the NDP on a silver platter.

NOT PROBLEM?

Onto the platter the NDP will be expected to add the fruits of labor's recent marriage to socialism.

Just how prolific this union will be has been a matter of much conjecture, and not until recent weeks has there been

Controversial Skybolt missile tucked under bomber's wing.

Skybolt Left in Air

WASHINGTON (AP)—Final decision on the Skybolt project, which has strained the American-British alliance, won't be made until after President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan meet next week.

Peacemaker

Visits to New Delhi and Peking to urge negotiation of Sino-Indian warfare are planned by Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi. India's Nehru said India cannot guarantee the cease-fire will continue.

Talks between U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara and British Foreign Minister Thorneycroft have bogged down.

DECISION WAIT

President Kennedy said Wednesday no final decision would be made on the possible U.S. scrapping of the Skybolt program until the current conference with the British and the project cost reappraisals are completed.

Kennedy said the U.S. government recognizes that Britain has an important stake in the Skybolt. However, he said, it must be decided whether the missile is worth the estimated cost—$2,500,000,000 on top of the $500,000,000 already spent.

COMPROMISE

It is believed Kennedy and Macmillan now will try to reach a compromise agreement at their Bahamas meeting Dec. 19 and 20.

The defence chiefs of the two nations had lengthy talks in London Tuesday. McNamara left for Paris Wednesday to attend the NATO ministerial meeting.

Macmillan first concluded the Skybolt agreement with President Eisenhower nearly three years ago. The Americans undertook to develop the missile and Britain undertook to buy it.

Britain needs the Skybolt to prolong the life of its manned-bomber force. Tucked under the wings of a bomber, the rocket is designed to be fired while still 1,100 miles from target.

Without it, Britain will have no other means of delivering nuclear weapons in the mid-1960s when anti-aircraft defences would make it virtually impossible for planes to drop their bombs over the target area.

British defence experts see Skybolt's initial flight failures as mere teething troubles which can be overcome.

'Hot Phone' Proposed

GENEVA (UPI)—The United States Thursday suggested a "hot telephone" link between President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev to help reduce the risk of thermonuclear war starting by accident or miscalculation.

There was an immediate reaction from the Soviets.

Nikita Hands China Rebuke, Warning

From AP, UPI
MOSCOW—Premier Khrushchev sharply rebuked Communist China Wednesday for urging war with the U.S. over Cuba and warned Peking the U.S. is a "paper tiger" with nuclear teeth.

In a two-hour, 40-minute address to the Supreme Soviet parliament broadcast to the nation, he warned the Cuban crisis was not over yet and suggested Russia expected the U.S. to live up to a no-invasion pledge on Cuba.

"The Soviet government is convinced it is not in the interest of peace to tarry with the completion of the Caribbean crisis, and we hope the government of the United States understands this too," he said.

Khrushchev listed settlement of the German issue as the No. 2 problem. He said Russia is determined to conclude a German peace treaty.

Meanwhile, in Washington, U.S. sources estimated between 2,000 and 3,000 Russian troops have left Cuba.

The present Russian press office said Brig. Gen. Antonio Abina was flying to Buenos Aires.

Rathie Mayor In Vancouver

Sunday Movies

Approved

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canada's third largest city seems sure to have Sunday movies, plays, concerts and operas after 1:30 p.m. and in the evenings.

Voters yesterday approved a plebiscite for Sunday entertainment and also elected as their new mayor William Rathie, 48, a hard-headed businessman and former alderman.

With about one-third of the polls reported, the vote for Sunday entertainment was 8,412 in favor and 3,886 against, a majority of more than two to one.

A bylaw to expand the aquarium in Stanley Park seemed to be headed for victory in early balloting but voters were turning down by-laws to spend more than $5,000,000 to turn parts of two golf courses into parkland.

The mayor-elect promised "substantial streamlining" in city hall and, immediately after his inauguration, to "step up to the front door of city hall and shake hands with all the civic employees."

Picking up majority blocs of votes in most parts of the city, he surged past Ald. Halford Wilson soon after the start of counting, and with 63 of 97 polls reporting had 32,036 votes to Wilson's 26,690.

Kennedy Firm On Cuba

(From AP and UPI)

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy said Wednesday the United States is taking every step necessary to see that offensive Soviet weapons are not brought back to Cuba.

During a press conference, the president said the U.S. is not retreating from its position that on-the-spot inspection in Cuba would have to be made before any formal "no-invasion" pledge could be made.

HOPES FOR SUCCESS

He said he hoped current negotiations with the Russians on Cuban issues would be successful.

Kennedy was questioned on the position reportedly taken by United Nations ambassador Adlai Stevenson in U.S. National Security Council deliberations on Cuba.

Kennedy said he would not attempt to describe in any way the position members of the council took. The decision in any case is the president's, he added, the council is merely advisory.

He said he does not think there is much advantage to press speculation about the position members took during the Cuban crisis. He said a consensus finally was reached, his decision was made, and all members supported it.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Thousands of men tended smudge pots and wind-machines across the central Florida orange belt Wednesday as freezing temperatures presented citrus growers with the greatest threat since 1957.

Cave-In Kills 34

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Thirty-four Negro miners were killed and 21 injured in a huge earth cave-in that swallowed a crushing plant Wednesday at the world's richest gold mine, West Driefontein, 35 miles west of here. The hole filled swiftly with water from a burst main. Mine officials praised Negro miners, moved others who had fallen into the pit.

Summer Fair Christmas Boon

A summer-time "Fun Fair" has become part of a Christmas gesture of help by 12 young ladies who live along Craigdarroch Road.

Three young spokesmen for the "Craigdarroch Athletic Association" bounced into The Daily Colonist office the other evening with $10.

Dennis Johnston, 12, of 1338 Craigdarroch, said the group had raised most of the money in a summer "Fun Fair" in a backyard, and the rest by collecting and selling pop bottles.

"After a lot of consideration, we decided we didn't want the money sitting around any longer, and decided the 500 Fund was the best place for it," he said.

They said, for some unexplained reason, that they weren't too happy with the "Athletic Association" name, nor did they want to say more than their "Fun Fair" included a "Chamber of Horrors" but they were very happy to have the money going to help the 500 Victoria families that will
